

Wheel Publication No. 381/382/383

The Coming Buddha Ariya Metteyya

Saya U Chit Tin, PhD.

The Coming Buddha Ariya Metteyya

By

Saya U Chit Tin, PhD.

Assisted by

William Pruitt, PhD.

Buddhist Publication Society
Kandy • Sri Lanka

The Wheel Publication No. 381/383

2nd revised edition

Copyright © 1992

By the Sayagyū U Ba Khin Memorial Trust, U.K.

ISBN 955-24-0098-8

Originally published in 1988 as Dhammadāna Series 7 by the The Sayagyi U Ba Khin Memorial Trust, U.K. This 2nd revised edition is published in the Wheel Series with the consent of the author and the original publisher.

BPS Online Edition © (2011)

Digital Transcription Source: BPS Transcription Project

For free distribution. This work may be republished, reformatted, reprinted and redistributed in any medium. However, any such republication and redistribution is to be made available to the public on a free and unrestricted basis, and translations and other derivative works are to be clearly marked as such.

Contents

List of abbreviations

Introduction

Introduction to the Revised Edition

The Bodhisatta Metteyya

Buddha Ariya Metteyya

The Duration of the Sāsana of Buddha Gotama

The Coming of Buddha Ariya Metteyya

The Birth of the Next Buddha

The Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha

The Career of Bodhisatta Metteyya

How to Meet Buddha Metteyya

Appendix A:

The Chronicle of the Future Buddha

Translation

Appendix B: Aspirations to Meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya

List of abbreviations

Unless otherwise stated, all editions are by the Pali Text Society.

A Aṅguttara Nikāya (trans., GS)

Anāg     Anāgatavaṃsa, editions used: JPTS, 1886, pp. 33–53 (Minayeff, ed.), and Ernst Leumann, Maitreya-samiti, das Zukunftsideal der Buddhisten (Strassburg: Karl J. Trubner, 1919; Pāli text, pp. 184–191; notes, pp. 192–226)

As        Atthasālinī (trans., Expos.)

BN 630    Bibliothèque nationale, Pali mss 630 (& 862), commentary on Anāg. We thank Mme J. Filliozat for making available a copy of her transcription of this text.

BN 862    Bibliothèque nationale, Pali mss 862.

BT        Buddhism in Translation (trans. by H.C. Warren)

Bv-a       Buddhavaṃsa-atthakathā (Madhuravilāsinī) (trans., CSM)

CB        Chronicle of Buddhas (Buddhavaṃsa)

CPD	A Critical Pāli Dictionary
CSM	The Clarifier of the Sweet Meaning (trans. of Bv-a)
Culte	Mohan Wijayaratna, Le Culte des dieux chez les bouddhistes singhalais (Paris: Cerf, 1987)
D	Dīgha-nikāya (trans., DB, TS)
DB	Dialogues of the Buddha (D)
Dbk	Dasabodhisattuppattikathā ( The Birth-stories of the Ten Bodhisattas ). The first number refers to the trans., the second number to the Pāli text.
Dbu	Dasabodhisatta-uddesa (ed. and French trans. by F. Martini [BEFEO 36, 2 (1936), pp. 287–390]. The first number refers to the French trans., the second number to the Pāli text).
DPPN	Dictionary of Pāli Proper Names
D-ṭ	Dīgha-nikāya-ṭikā
Dvp	Dasavatthupparakaraṇa (ed. and trans. by J. Ver Eecke, EFEO [1976]. The first number refers to the Pāli text, the second number to the French translation.
Expos.	The Expositor (As)
GD	The Group of Discourses (Sn)
GS	The Gradual Sayings (A)

Illus.	The Illustrator of Ultimate Meaning (Paramatthajotikā I)
Ja	Jātaka
JPTS	The Journal of the Pali Text Society
KS	The Kindred Sayings (S)
M	Majjhima Nikāya (trans., MLS)
MB	The Manuals of Buddhism by Ledi Sayadaw (Union of Buddha Sāsana Council, 1965)
MLS	The Middle Length Sayings (M)
Moh	Mohavicchedanī
Mp	Manorathapurāṇī (commentary on A)
PED	The Pali-English Dictionary
Pj II	Paramatthajotikā (commentary on Sn)
Sīh	Sīhalaṅkavuttappakarāṇa (ed. and trans. by J. Ver Eecke, EFEO [1980])
Sn	Suttanipāta (trans., GD)
Sp	Samantapāsādikā (commentary on the Vinaya- Piṭaka)
Spk	Sāratthappakāsinī (commentary on the Saṃyutta-nikāya)
Sv	Sumaṅgalavilāsinī (commentary on D)
Th	Theragāthā

Th-a	Theragāthā-aṭṭhakathā (Paramatthadīpanī V)
Treatise	'A Treatise on the Pāramīs,' The All-Embracing Net of Views (Buddhist Publication Society 1978)
TS	Ten Suttas from Dīgha Nikāya (Rangoon: Burma Piṭaka Association, 1984)
v(v)	verse(s)
Vism	Visuddhimagga

Introduction

We have gathered here all the information we could find in the Theravāda tradition concerning the coming Buddha. [1] In Burma and Sri Lanka, the coming Buddha is generally spoken of as Ariya Metteyya, the Noble Metteyya. [2] The term Ariya was already added to the name in some post-canonical Pāli texts, and it shows the deep respect felt for the Bodhisatta who will attain Awakening in the best of conditions. Indeed, all aspects of his career as a Buddha rank among the highest achievements of Buddhas of the past as recorded in the Buddhavaṃsa (The Chronicle of Buddhas).

It is only natural that over the years many people have aspired to meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya—not only because it has become less common for people to attain Awakening, but also because of a natural desire to encounter such a rare occasion. In his introduction to his edition and translation of the Dasabodhisattuppattikathā (The Birth Stories of the Ten Bodhisattas), Ven. H. Saddhatissa has given several texts included in Pāli commentaries and chronicles and in Sinhalese Buddhist texts in which the writers express the wish to meet the coming Buddha. [3]

The commentary on the Jātaka stories ends with a poem in which the writer aspires to be with the Bodhisatta Metteyya in the Tusita Deva world and to receive a sure prediction of future Buddhahood from him when he becomes a Buddha. [4] Sinhalese versions of the Visuddhimagga end with a poem in which the writer aspires to rebirth in the Tāvatiṃsa Deva world and then to final liberation under Buddha Metteyya. [5] Ven. Saddhatissa attributes these verses to Ashin Buddhaghosa, but they seem to be written by a copyist. Another aspiration to encounter Buddha Metteyya is found at the end of Sinhalese manuscripts of Ashin Buddhaghosa's Dasabodhisattuppattikathā. [6]

Ven. Saddhātissa also cites many instances from the Pāli chronicles (Mahāvamsa and Cūlavamsa) in which Sinhalese kings honoured Metteyya. [7] King Duṭṭhagāmaṇī of the second century BC was considered to be destined to become the next Buddha's chief disciple.

Royalty and high-ranking officials in Burma often made similar aspirations. This seems to have led to building pagodas with five sides at Pagan. Paul Strachan points out that with the Dhamma-Yazika Pagoda (Dhamma-rājika) Pagoda, completed in 1196 by King Sithu II, "The addition of a fifth side to temple and stupa ground plans in Burma is without precedent throughout the Buddhist world and the Burmese were possibly the first society throughout the world to attempt this pentagonal type of plan for a major architectural work. The origins of this movement lie in contemporary religious thought: the cults of Mettaya, the future buddha, and the present cycle of five buddhas.” [8] Two thirteenth-century inscriptions at the temple in Buddha Gayā record that repairs on the temple were carried out through the generosity of King Kyawswa of Burma, and the concluding verse is an aspiration to become a disciple of Buddha Metteyya. [9] As in Sri Lanka, many Buddhist texts end with the aspiration to meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya.

Just as the future Buddha Metteyya became more important for Buddhists as the centuries went by, many of the texts giving information about him are fairly late. The Anāgatavaṃsa is said to have been written by the author of the Mohavicchedanī, Ashin Kassapa (1160–1230 AD). [10] It is very difficult to know how far back information goes when it is given in the Pāli commentaries, sub-commentaries, chronicles, and other texts written down after the canon. We have given all the information available to us that is part of the Theravāda tradition, but we must be careful to remember that texts such as the Dasabodhisattuppattikathā (The Birth Stories of the Ten Bodhisattas), the Dasabodhisattavuddesa, the Dasavatthupparakaraṇa, and the Sīhaḷavatthupparakaraṇa seem to contain information that was added at a relatively late date. This is especially evident in the many variants in various texts for names and numbers.

It takes more than just a wish if a person is to encounter a Buddha and attain Nibbāna, however. Sayagyi U Ba Khin taught his meditation students that they must practise Sīla, Samādhi, and Paññā (virtue, concentration, and wisdom) as Buddha Gotama taught we should. Sayagyi U Ba Khin made every effort to make sure that his own practice and what he taught was consistent with what his teachers passed on to him and with the Teachings of the Buddha in the Pāli canon and commentaries.

There are many pressures in the world today to modify the Teachings of the Buddha. The Buddha foresaw that this would happen and warned his disciples to be careful to maintain the practice just as he had taught them. Ven. Mahā-Kassapa convened the First Buddhist Council shortly after the Buddha's demise in order to rehearse the Teachings. The Saṅgha has kept these Teachings intact over the centuries, and the Sixth Buddhist Council, held in Burma in 1954–1956, was the most recent effort to make sure the three collections of texts (Tipiṭaka) are kept pure.

Sayagyi U Ba Khin repeated the Burmese tradition that those who live in accordance with these Teachings will meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya. It is even believed that the coming Buddha's power will be such that he will be able to reach people who have lived up to the Teachings in this life but who have done deeds in the past which lead to their being born in lower realms before he comes. Some hints of this are found in Pāli texts which show the power of sharing merits.

Sayagyi also often repeated a saying of the Buddha's found in Dhammapada verse 354: Sabbadānaṃ dhammadānaṃ jināti. "The gift of the Dhamma surpasses all other gifts." This, of course, does not mean that we should not give material gifts. Sayagyi himself was always very generous with gifts to the Saṅgha and others. But the gift of the Dhamma can only be given while the Teachings of a Buddha are available, and by laying emphasis on this quotation of the Buddha's, Sayagyi reminded us that we must never become so involved in material considerations that we neglect the most important gift of all. (See also paragraph 2, page 12 below. If we assume that Bodhisatta Metteyya's last human life before attaining Buddhahood is during a Buddha's Dispensation, he would be able to give the gift of the Dhamma, unlike Vessantara, who lived outside such a period.)

May all make the right effort here and now in this life so that they will attain Nibbāna!

Introduction to the Revised Edition

This new edition includes corrections and additions to the first two editions. We wish to thank Venerable Bhikkhu Bodhi for his suggestions for this second revision of our text. Mother Sayamagyi and I were pleased that the first revised edition of this text was included among the publications marking the tenth anniversary of our coming out of Burma to continue our work in teaching the Buddha-

Dhamma in the tradition of our esteemed teacher Sayagyi U Ba Khin. We hope that this new edition in the Wheel series will make the text available to a larger audience.

Saya U Chit Tin
International Meditation Centre
Heddington, Calne, U.K.
October 12, 1992

The Bodhisatta Metteyya

*Uttamo Metteyyo Rāmo Pasenadi Kosalo ca
Abhibhū Dīghasoni ca Caṇḍani ca Subo Todeyyabrahmaṇo
Nālāgiri Palaleyyo bodhisattā anukkamena Sambodhiṃ labhanti anāgate.*

(Buddha Gotama predicted as follows:)

In the future (ten) Bodhisattas will attain full awakening in the following order: the most honourable (Ariya) Metteyya, (King) Rāma, (King) Pasenadi of Kosala, (the Deva) Abhibhu, (the Asura Deva) Dīghasoni, (the Brahman) Caṇḍani, (the young man) Subha, the Brahman Todeyya, (the elephant) Nālāgiri, and (the elephant) Palaleya. [11]

The most important aspiration for any individual is to aim for the true liberation of attaining Nibbāna. When a person is able to make this resolve in the presence of a Teaching Buddha and get a sure prediction from him, he or she becomes one who is intent on Awakening, a Bodhisatta. [12]
There are three types of Bodhisattas:

(1) those who aspire to become Awakened as a disciple of a Teaching Buddha:

- (a) ordinary disciples (sāvaka),
- (b) eighty leading disciples (mahā-sāvaka), and
- (c) two chief disciples (agga-sāvaka);

(2) those who aspire to become Awakened through their own efforts but who will not teach others the way to Awakening (pacceka-bodhisatta), and

(3) those who aspire to become Awakened through their own efforts and who will teach others the way to Awakening (mahā-bodhisatta). [13]

In this paper, we will concentrate on the last type of Bodhisatta, with particular reference to the next Buddha, Metteyya. [14]

It is natural that interest in the coming Buddha has grown as the years go by. When Buddha Gotama was available, most of the people's efforts went to practising his Teachings and attaining Awakening. Immediately after his demise, his Teachings were collected, and, since that time, great care has gone into maintaining their purity in order that they may remain effective.

The number of those who attain Nibbāna are less as time goes by, and so people began to think more in terms of meeting the next Buddha and achieving Awakening under him. [15] It is important that the practice of the Buddha's

Teachings not be neglected, however. It is not wishful thinking that enables us to encounter a Buddha, but rather developing the ten perfections and advancing as far as possible in the practice of a Buddha's Teachings whenever possible. This is particularly important today as the Buddha's Teachings are on the decline and it becomes easier and easier to go down to the four lower planes of existence. If this should happen, it is very unlikely that a person would meet the next Buddha.

A Teaching Buddha is the greatest of all beings, and the preparation for achieving this state of being a Supreme Awakened One (Sammāsambuddha) takes longer than the preparation to attain Awakening as a disciple or a Pacceka-Buddha.

In the commentaries on the Pāli canon, the preparation of a Mahā-bodhisatta is given in detail. This Great Being (Mahāsatta) will develop the ten perfections (pāramī) longer and to a higher degree than the lesser types of Bodhisattas. A person who becomes Awakened as an ordinary disciple of a Teaching Buddha must work on the ten perfections for ten to one hundred thousand aeons. [16] Leading disciples must prepare one hundred thousand aeons. Chief disciples work for one incalculable and one hundred thousand aeons. To become a Pacceka Buddha requires two incalculable aeons. But a man working to become a Teaching Buddha develops the perfections on three levels, making thirty perfections in all. [17] The three levels of perfections mean the sacrifice of external possessions for the ordinary level, the sacrifice of any of one's limbs for the middle level, and the sacrifice of one's life for the highest level. [18]

Several other interpretations for the three levels are given, [19] and some of these are of interest for meditators today. The three levels can be understood to mean: (1) rejoicing in other people's merits, (2) encouraging other people to practise the Teachings, (3) practising oneself. Or, they can be taken to mean that acquiring merit and knowledge on the first level leads to life in happy states, on the second level it leads to attaining Nibbāna oneself, and on the third level it leads to aiding others to attain both of these types of happiness.

The Great Bodhisatta achieves the three levels of the perfection of giving (dāna) by giving (1) his belongings, children, and wife; (2) his limbs; and (3) his life. He will not transgress virtue (sīla) on account of these three. He fulfils renunciation (nekkhamma) by giving up these three after cutting off all attachment to them. By rooting out all craving for these three, he is able to discriminate between what is beneficial or harmful to beings—thus perfecting wisdom (paññā). The three levels of energy (virīya) are reached by striving to relinquish these three. Through patience (khanti) he endures obstacles to his belongings, limbs, and life. He will not abandon truthfulness (sacca) on account of these three. His resolution (adhiṭṭhāna) is unshakeable even if these three are destroyed. He maintains loving kindness (mettā) towards others even though they destroy these three. He perfects equanimity (upekkhā) by remaining neutral whether others are helpful or harmful to any of these three. [20]

Great Bodhisattas are of three types: [21] (1) those in whom wisdom (paññā) is predominant, (2) those in whom faith (saddha) is predominant, and (3) those in whom energy (virīya) is predominant. For the first type, the preparation requires four incalculable and one hundred thousand aeons. The second type works for eight incalculable and one hundred thousand aeons. The Bodhisatta Metteyya is the third type, those who work for sixteen incalculable and one hundred thousand aeons. [22] These three types are also explained as being due to the degree of the quality of the energy they put forth, or again, as being determined by the degree they develop the mental factors which bring emancipation to maturity (vimutti-paripācanīyā dhammā).

These three types of Great Bodhisattas are determined by how much they have developed the perfections when they make the aspiration to become a Teaching Buddha. At the time they aspire to become a Teaching Buddha, they will already have prepared to attain final Nibbāna, Arahatship. [23] They will be at the point that they could become Arahats (1) through a condensed teaching of less than three lines (ugghaṭitaññū), (2) through an elaborated teaching of less than four lines (vipañcitaññū), or (3) through further training amounting to hearing four lines (neyya). According to the commentary on the Anāgatavaṃsa, [24] Those in whom faith is predominant, which was the case for the Bodhisatta who became Buddha Gotama, would be able to understand a condensed teaching of less than three lines. Those in whom faith is predominant would understand a teaching of less than four lines. Those in whom energy is predominant, as was the case for Bodhisatta Metteyya, would understand on hearing four lines. This might seem to suggest that the future Buddha Gotama was more advanced than the future Buddha Metteyya when he made his resolve to become a Buddha. But the difference may be related to the fact that a Bodhisatta for whom energy is predominant develops the perfections four times as long as a Bodhisatta for whom wisdom is predominant.

There are many conditions associated with making the resolve to become a Teaching Buddha. [25] The aspiration (abhinīhāra) is: “Crossed over I would cause (others) to cross over, released I would cause (others) to be released, tamed I would cause (others) to be tamed, calmed I would cause (others) to be calmed, comforted I would cause (others) to be comforted, completely quenched I would cause (others) to be completely quenched, Awakened I would cause (others) to be Awakened, purified I would cause (others) to be purified.”

There are eight qualifications for the man who is to become a Great Bodhisatta: [26]

1. He must be a human being (manusatta), as this is the plane in which Buddhas arise. This is the plane in which beings can have the three root causes of being free of greed, hatred, and confusion.

2. He must be a male (liṅgasampatti), for only a man can become a Buddha.
3. He must have achieved the necessary conditions supporting Buddhahood, in other words, the cause (hetu), which means that at the time of the aspiration he was prepared to attain Arahatsip.
4. He must see the Teacher (satthāradassana), as the aspiration can only be successful if made in the presence of a living Buddha. Only a Teaching Buddha can see the capability of the person making the aspiration and what will work out in the future.
5. He must have gone forth (pabbajjā) either as a bhikkhu or as an ascetic who believes in the doctrines of volitional actions and the moral effectiveness of action.
6. He must have achieved the noble qualities (gūṇasampatti) which come with highly developed control over the mind. Only then will he be able to investigate the ten perfections that he will need to develop.
7. He must possess great dedication (adhikāra). He will be so devoted he would give his life for a Buddha.
8. And he must have a strong desire (chandatā), a wholesome desire, if he is to develop the mental factors which make for Buddhahood.

The aspiration has one of four conditions (paccaya): the man is inspired because (1) he sees a Teaching Buddha, or (2) he hears of the great power of a Teaching Buddha, or (3) he hears the Doctrine of a Teaching Buddha being taught and the powers of a Buddha explained, or (4) he is a man of lofty temperament and noble disposition. Bodhisatta Metteyya comes under the second condition, as we shall see.

The aspiration has four causes (hetu):

The Great Bodhisatta has already fulfilled his duties under former Buddhas and acquired the supporting conditions (upanissaya) for fulfilling his task. These supporting conditions create a clear distinction between the Great Bodhisatta and the beings intent on becoming Awakened as disciples or Pacceka Buddhas. Great Bodhisattas are endowed with lucid faculties and lucid knowledge, while the others do not. He practises for the welfare and happiness of many, out of compassion for the world, for the good, welfare, and happiness of Devas and men. The others practise mainly for their own welfare. He applies skilfulness to his practise through his ability to create opportunities to benefit others and through his skill in distinguishing what is and what is not possible.

1. He is by nature compassionate, ready to give his own body and life to alleviate the suffering of others.
2. He is willing to struggle and strive for a long time, despite the great hardships he will encounter.
3. He relies on good friends who restrain him from evil and establish him in what is good.

Finally, the aspiration is based on four powers (Bala): (1) internal power (ajjhattika-bala), (2) external power (bāhira-bala), (3) the power of the supporting conditions (upanissaya-bala), and (4) the power of effort (payoga-bala). The internal power is the longing or undeviating inclination for supreme Awakening based on his personal ideals and reverence for the Dhamma. The external power is this same longing based on consideration of others. Through developing the supporting conditions, he has the power of this longing. And the power of effort means he is endowed with the appropriate effort for attaining supreme Awakening. His effort will be thorough and he will persevere in his work.

The Great Bodhisattas are confirmed in their aspiration by many Buddhas. A sixteenth-century Pāḷi text from Thailand [27] says that Bodhisatta Metteyya received his prediction of future Buddhahood from Buddha Mahutta. This would presumably be the first prediction for him. This text also gives details of the period during which the Bodhisatta who became Buddha Gotama made a mental resolve to become a Teaching Buddha. This is shown to be his preparation for the life in which he received his first sure prediction. Bodhisatta Metteyya is mentioned as being associated with him in two of these lives: as his leading disciple when he was a religious teacher [28] and as his chaplain (named Sirigutta) when he was King Atideva. [29]

The story of one occasion when Bodhisatta Metteyya made an aspiration and when the perfection which is strongest for him is illustrated is told in Pāḷi texts which were written down after the compilation of the canon. [30] The story of Bodhisatta Metteyya's aspiration was told to the leading disciple Ven. Sariputta when he was residing near Sāvatti in the Pubbārāma, the monastery offered by the laywoman Visākhā.

Long ago, Bodhisatta Metteyya was the Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha in the city of Indapatta in the Kuru country. This large city resembled a city of the Devas. Wheel-turning Monarchs reign over the whole earth and have seven great treasures: a great wheel, an elephant, horse, gem, wife, householder, and adviser. Saṅkha lived in a seven-storey palace made of the seven kinds of gems. This palace rose up out of the earth through the power of his merit. Saṅkha led others to follow the path leading to rebirth in the higher planes of existence, and he administered justice with impartiality.

After Saṅkha became a Wheel-turning Monarch, there arose the Buddha Sirimata. [31] Whenever a Bodhisatta is to be born in his last life, there is a Buddha proclamation a thousand years before. [32] Brahmās of the Pure Abodes (Suddhāvāsa) travel throughout the world of men and proclaim: "A thousand years from now, a Buddha will arise in the world." King Saṅkha must have heard of this proclamation, for one day, as he sat on his golden throne under the royal white umbrella, he said, "A long time ago there was a proclamation that a Buddha would be born. I will turn over the place of Wheel-turning Monarch to whoever knows of the Triple Gem, to whoever points out to me the gems of the Buddha, the Dhamma, and the Saṅgha, as well as the Dispensation. I will go to see the Supreme Buddha.” Buddha Sirimata was residing at that time only sixteen leagues from Saṅkha’s capital city. Among the sāmaṇeras (novices) in the Saṅgha, there was a boy who came from a poor family. His mother was a slave, so the sāmaṇera went to the city to seek wealth in order to set his mother free. When the people saw him, they thought he was a Yakkha, or ogre, so they threw sticks at him. Afraid, he went to the palace and stood before the king. “Who are you, young man?” the king asked.

“I am called a sāmaṇera, O great king,” the sāmaṇera answered.

“Why do you call yourself a sāmaṇera?”

“Because, O great king, I do no evil, I have established myself in moral conduct, and thus I lead the holy life. Therefore I am called a sāmaṇera.”

“Who gave you that name?”

“My teacher, O great king.”

“What is your teacher called, young man?”

“My teacher is called a bhikkhu, O great king.”

“Who gave your teacher the name ‘bhikkhu,’ young man?”

“O great king, my teacher’s name was given by the priceless gem of the Saṅgha.”

Full of joy, King Saṅkha rose from his throne and prostrated himself at the feet of the sāmaṇera. And he asked, “Who gave the name to the Saṅgha?” “O great king, the Noble Supreme Buddha Sirimata gave the name to the Saṅgha.” Hearing the word “Buddha,” which is so difficult to hear in many hundreds of thousands of aeons, King Saṅkha fainted from joy. When he regained consciousness, he asked, “Venerable sir, where does the Noble Supreme Buddha Sirimata reside at present?”

And the sāmaṇera told him the Buddha was in a monastery called Pubbārāma, sixteen leagues away. King Saṅkha turned over the power of Wheel-turning Monarch to the sāmaṇera. He gave up his kingdom and a great number of relatives. Filled with joy at the thought of seeing the Buddha, he started walking to the north towards the Pubbārāma. The first day, the soles of his feet split open, for they were very tender due to his luxurious upbringing. On the second day, his feet began to bleed. He was unable to walk on the third day, so he went on his hands and knees. On the fourth day, his hands and feet bled, so he determined to continue on his chest. The joy of the possibility of seeing the Buddha enabled him to overcome his great suffering and pain.

Buddha Sirimata surveyed the world with his All-knowing Knowledge and seeing the power of the effort (virīya-bala) of the king, the Buddha thought, “This Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha is surely a seed, a Buddha-sprout (Buddhaṅkura-bījo). He undertakes great pain because of me. Indeed, I should go to him.” By his psychic powers, the Buddha hid his great splendour and went disguised as a young man in a chariot. He went to where Saṅkha was and blocked his path in order to test the power of his effort.

“You there!” Buddha Sirimata said to King Saṅkha, “go back on your chest! I am going down this road in my chariot.” But King Saṅkha refused, saying he was on his way to see the Buddha. The Buddha in disguise invited the king to get into his chariot, saying that is where he was going. On the way, the Deva maiden Sujātā came down from the Tāvatiṃsa heaven, and taking the form of a young girl, offered food. The Buddha had it given to Saṅkha. Then Sakka, in the form of a young man, came down from the Tāvatiṃsa heaven and gave water. As a result of the divine food and water, all King Saṅkha’s ailments disappeared.

When they arrived at Pubbārāma, the Buddha sat on his seat in the monastery, assuming his true appearance with the rays of six colours shining forth. When the king went in and saw the Buddha, he again lost consciousness. After a while, he came to himself, approached the Buddha, and paid his respects.

“Venerable sir,” he requested, “protector of the world, refuge of the world, teach me one (point of the) doctrine which may calm me when I have heard it.” “Very well,” the Buddha said, “listen.” The Buddha reviewed the Doctrine of Nibbāna and taught the king a discourse concerning Nibbāna. This aroused reverence for the Doctrine in the king, but after hearing only a little of the Doctrine, he requested the Buddha, “Please stop, Blessed One. Do not teach me any more.” He said this because he thought to himself that he would not have a gift worthy of what the Buddha taught him if he heard any more.

“Indeed, venerable sir,” the king said, “of all the doctrines taught, the Blessed One has pointed out Nibbāna, which is the highest. So, of all the parts of my body, I will pay homage to your Doctrine with my head.” He began to sever his neck with his fingernails and said, “Venerable Buddha Sirimata, you go [33] to the deathless first; through the gift of my head, I will afterwards go to Nibbāna. Having said just these few words, I pay homage to the doctrine of Nibbāna. Now, may this be the means for (my attaining) omniscience.” And saying this, he finished severing his head with his fingernails.

King Saṅkha’s predominant characteristic was his great energy (virīya). This is shown through his overcoming the difficulties in going to see Buddha Sirimata. His effort was so strong, the Buddha realised that he was a Great Bodhisatta. Other perfections are also illustrated in this story. He gives away his position of Wheel-turning Monarch. Even before hearing of the Buddha, he set the example of leading a moral life leading to higher rebirths. As a just king, he would show his wisdom, patience, truthfulness, loving kindness, and equanimity. Once he hears of the Buddha, he renounces his kingdom and family, giving up the highest position that can be attained by a human being. And great resolution worked together with his energy.

The final action of King Saṅkha is the gift of his head to the Buddha. This may seem strange, but it is explained in the text by the fact that the Buddha had taught him one aspect of the Doctrine concerning Nibbāna, the highest goal. King Saṅkha cannot find any other gift worthy of Nibbāna, so he resolves to offer his own head. In the Pāli commentaries, [34] 23 it is said that only giving their own limbs or their life makes Great Bodhisattas exalt when they give. Joy arises when they give such gifts and they experience no contrariety of mind. So we can see that such gifts are beyond ordinary people, and we need not feel that we should make such sacrifices ourselves.

During the time of Buddha Gotama, the Great Bodhisatta who is to be the next Buddha was a bhikkhu named Ajita. [35] According to the commentary on the Anāgatavaṃsa, Ajita was the son of King Ajātasattu and Queen Kancanadevi. [36] Prince Ajita had five hundred attendants, and when he reached the age of sixteen, the king asked his son to inherit the Buddha's heritage. The Prince agreed, so the king took him to the Veḷuvana Monastery in great pomp and splendour along with his five hundred attendants. Prince Ajita was ordained as a novice, and because of his serenity, calmness, and wisdom he was much respected. Later he was ordained as a bhikkhu. The Buddha took him when he went from Rājagaha to Kapilavatthu to reside in the Nirodhārāma Monastery.

While they were residing at that monastery, Mahā-Pajāpatī-Gotamī came one day with two special cloths to be presented to the Buddha for use as robes. She had planted the cotton seeds herself and did all the necessary work up to the time the robes were finished. The account of the gift of the cloths is found in the Majjhima-nikāya. [37] There, the Buddha refused three times to accept the robes offered by Mahā-Pajāpatī-Gotamī and suggested that she offer them to the Saṅgha with the Buddha at its head. Ven. Ānanda approached the Buddha, suggesting he should accept the cloths. The Buddha then gave the discourse on the analysis of offerings.

No other details are given in the Pāli canon or Ashin Buddhaghosa's commentary on this discourse. In the commentary on the Anāgatavaṃsa, it is said that the Buddha accepted one robe for himself and instructed his step-mother to offer the second one to the Saṅgha. But not one of the eighty leading disciples came forward to accept that robe. Eventually, Ven. Ajita thought to himself that the Buddha had told his step-mother to give the robe to the Saṅgha for her benefit, so he bravely got up like a king of the lions in the midst of the Saṅgha and accepted the robe. There was some disappointment and much talk about how an unknown bhikkhu could accept the robe when none of the leading disciples had taken it. Realising the situation and in order to dispel any doubts, the Buddha said, "Do not say this bhikkhu is an ordinary bhikkhu. He is a Bodhisatta who will be the coming Buddha Metteyya." Then the Buddha took the bowl that had been given to him shortly after his Awakening by the world's four Guardian Devas and threw it into the air. None of the eighty leading disciples could retrieve it, but Ven. Ajita understood that the Buddha intended for him to show his psychic powers, so he brought back the bowl. Then Ven. Ajita took the cloth he had accepted and put it in the Buddha's Perfumed Chamber as a canopy under the ceiling, making the aspiration that this act of generosity might result in his having a canopy made of seven gems and with hangings made of gold, silver, coral, and pearls measuring twelve leagues when he becomes a Buddha. [38] The Buddha smiled after this and Ven. Ānanda asked why he had smiled. The Buddha replied, "Ānanda, the bhikkhu Ajita will become the Buddha Ariya Metteyya in this Auspicious Aeon." Then he remained silent, enjoying the fruits of Arahantship. The first chief disciple, Ven. Sāriputta, who knew the assembled bhikkhus wished to hear more information, requested the Buddha give a discourse about the coming Buddha. And the Buddha gave the account in the Anāgatavaṃsa.

The prediction concerning Metteyya is found in the Pāli canon, [39] but the details concerning the future Buddha will be given in a separate talk. The Dasavatthu goes on to say that from the time of the sure prediction, the Bodhisatta taught a large number of bhikkhus, explaining the whole canon and causing them to increase in insight and to attain the knowledge of adaptable patience. At the end of that life, he was reborn in a Deva world. But there is a reference to at least one other human life as he should have a life in which he is generous in the way the Bodhisatta Vessantara was. [40] After that life, he should be reborn in the Tusita Deva world, where all Great Bodhisattas reside before their final birth. According to the Culavaṃsa, the Bodhisatta would have other human births. [41]

When Ashin Buddhaghosa went from India to Ceylon to consult the commentaries on the Pāli canon, he was given two verses to comment on as a test. The result was the Visuddhimagga (The Path of Purification). The Devas, in order to convince the people of his greatness, hid the text twice so that Ashin Buddhaghosa had to copy it twice. When the copies were compared with the original, no deviations were found. The Saṅgha then exclaimed, “Without a doubt this is Metteyya!” The Visuddhimagga is especially important for those practising the Buddha’s Teachings. Sayagyi U Ba Khin considered this work the most important single work explaining true Buddhist meditation. In another Pāli text that is not part of the canon, there is a description of Metteyya in the Tusita world. [42] He is said to go to the Cūlāmaṇi shrine in the Tāvatiṃsa Deva world to pay respects to the hair cut off by the Bodhisatta Siddhattha when he made the great renunciation and to relics brought there by the Deva king Sakka after the death of Buddha Gotama. The Bodhisatta Metteyya is described as being surrounded by a host of Devas and Devīs. Four Devī maidens in particular are described as having beautiful complexions, halos, ornaments, and clothes, one of a shining colour, one red, one dark gold, and the fourth, golden. The main point of this text is that beings who wish to encounter the coming Buddha and attain Awakening under him should act accordingly. Bhikkhus should not create a schism in the Saṅgha. The five heinous actions which inevitably lead to rebirth in the lower worlds should be avoided. In addition to not creating a schism, these include not killing one's father, one's mother, or an Arahāt. The fifth point, not drawing the blood of a Buddha, of course, is no longer possible. Other actions to be avoided are destroying pagodas (thūpas) or breaking Bodhi trees. Bodhisattas should not be killed. One should not be stingy or tell lies. In one of the texts about Buddha Gotama's description of the ten future Buddhas, [43] the following positive actions are said to be necessary if those who encounter this Buddha Dispensation wish to meet Buddha Metteyya: they must give gifts (dāna), observe morality (sīla), and develop mental control—that is to say, meditation (bhāvanā).

Those of us today who are practising the Teachings of the Buddha should try to advance as far as possible. Some people may be able to become Ariyas here and now. People who have not developed the perfections required for such attainments or who have made an aspiration under a former Buddha to meet Buddha Metteyya will need to make a maximum effort in order not to miss this opportunity or in order to gain the maximum benefits. We should not just assume that we are meant to defer Awakening until we meet the next Buddha. Ashin Buddhaghosa gives the example of Elder Mahā-Saṅgharakkhita who needed a reminder in order not to miss his opportunity to attain Arahātship, for he had mistakenly thought he should wait until the next Buddha. [44] Meditators who become Ariyas aside from Arahats may eventually go to the Brahmā worlds of the Pure Abodes (Suddhāvāsa), and there they may live long enough to meet the coming Buddha. [45] So we should all make our best effort in this life.

Buddha Ariya Metteyya

Atta-dīpa bhikkhave viharatha atta-saraṇā anañña-saraṇā dhamma-dīpā dhamma-saraṇā anañña-saraṇā.

Kathaṅ ca bhikkhave bhikkhu atta-dīpo viharati atta-saraṇo anañña-Saraṇo, dhamma-dīpo dhamma-saraṇo anaññasaraṇo?

Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu kāye kāyānu-passī viharati ātāpī sampajāno satimā, vineyya-loke abhijjhā-domanassaṃ, veda-nāsu ... cittesu ... dhammesu dhammānu-passī viharati, ātāpī sampajāno satimā, vineyya loke abhijjhā-domanassaṃ. Evaṃ kho bhikkhave bhikkhu atta-dīpo viharati atta-saraṇo anañña-saraṇo, dhamma-dīpo dhamma-saraṇo anañña-saraṇo.

Dwell, bhikkhus, with yourselves as an island, with yourselves as a refuge, with no one else as a refuge; with the Doctrine as an island, with the Doctrine as a refuge, with no other [doctrine] as a refuge.

And how, bhikkhus, does a bhikkhu dwell with himself as an island, with himself as a refuge, with no one else as a refuge; with the Doctrine as an island, with the Doctrine as a refuge, with no other [doctrine] as a refuge?

Here (in this Teaching), bhikkhus, a bhikkhu lives, contemplating the body in the body, contemplating the sensations in the sensations, contemplating the consciousness in the consciousness, contemplating mental objects in mental objects, ardent, attentive, mindful, having removed covetousness and discontent with regards to the world. Thus, bhikkhus, does a bhikkhu dwell with himself as an island, with himself as a refuge, with no one else as a refuge; with the Doctrine as a refuge, with no other [doctrine] as a refuge.

Dīgha-nikāya III 58, 77

This quotation begins the discourse in which the Buddha describes the coming of the next Buddha, Metteyya. [46] The Buddha first describes the ideal conditions that existed on earth long ago when there were a succession of seven Wheel-turning Monarchs. Eventually, there was a king who neglected to provide for the poor. As a consequence, theft arose in the world. Gradually, people became more and more immoral and killed others. Because of this, their life span declined from eighty thousand years to forty thousand years. Then people began to tell lies, and the human life span declined to twenty thousand years. Next, malicious speech became prevalent, and the life span decreased to ten thousand years. Then sexual misconduct became prevalent, with the result that people lived for five thousand years. Harsh speech and frivolous talk became prevalent, and people lived for two and a half thousand years and two thousand years. With the advent of covetousness and ill will, the life span declined to one thousand years. When people began to entertain wrong beliefs, their life span decreased to five hundred years. Then three things became rampant: incest, unnatural greed, and homosexuality. [47] As a result, the human life span decreased to two hundred and fifty years and two hundred years. Then there was a lack of filial duty towards parents, failure to fulfil duties towards religious leaders (samaṇas and brāhmaṇas), and failure to respect community leaders; and the life span decreased to one hundred years. This was the human life span at the time of Buddha Gotama. When the life span is shorter than a hundred years, there can be no Buddha in the world. [48]

The Buddha explained that immorality will continue to increase and the human life span will continue to decrease until it is only ten years. Girls will be married at five years of age. At that time, people who have no respect for their parents, for religious leaders, or for community leaders will be honoured and praised. Promiscuity will be so common, human beings will be like animals. Animosity, ill will, and hatred will be so strong, people will want to kill the members of their own family. There will be a seven-day war with great slaughter. But some people will hide for the seven days, and afterwards they will rejoice to see those who have survived. They will determine to stop killing, and their life spans will increase to twenty years. Seeing this, they will undertake to keep other moral precepts, and gradually the human life span will increase again.

The Duration of the Sāsana of Buddha Gotama

During the period from the time of Buddha Gotama to the minimum life span, the Buddha's Dispensation (Buddha-sāsana) will disappear. When the Buddha agreed to create the Bhikkhunī Saṅgha, he told Ven. Ānanda that the Sāsana would last only half as long because of this. Instead of lasting one thousand years, it would last five hundred years. The commentary on the Abhidhamma text, Dhammasaṅgaṇī, says that when the First Buddhist Council convened by Ven. Mahā-Kassapa rehearsed the Pāḷi Canon, this made it possible for the Sāsana to endure for five thousand years. [49]

The commentaries on the Vinaya Piṭaka [50] and the Āṅguttara-nikāya [51] say that the eight important rules which the Buddha gave to the Bhikkhunī Saṅgha will make his Teachings last for five thousand years rather than five hundred. There will be one thousand years for Arahats who attain analytical insight, one thousand years for Arahats without those attainments, one thousand years for Non-returners, one thousand years for Once-returners, and one thousand years for Stream-winners. After these five thousand years of penetration of the true Doctrine (paṭivedha-sadhamma), [52] the accomplishment in the texts (pariyatti-dhamma) will remain. After the accomplishment in the texts disappears, the signs (liṅga) will continue for a long time

In the commentary to the Theragāthā [53] the Sāsana is said to consist of five periods: (1) the age of deliverance (vimutti-yuga), (2) the age of concentration (samādhi-yuga), (3) the age of morality (sīla-yuga), (4) the age of learning [the texts] (suta-yuga), and (5) the age of generosity (dāna-yuga). Ven. Dhammapāla says, concerning the disappearance of learning, “In a region where there is no purity of morality, accomplishment (in the texts) remains through taking up great learning, through the desire to acquire, etc. But when accomplishment in the summary [i.e., the Pātīmokkha] is completely ended, it disappears. From that time on, only the mere sign (liṅga) remains. Then, having accumulated riches in various ways, they give away gifts (dāna); this, truly, is the last right practice. Then, [the period starting] after the disappearance of learning is the last time (pacchima-kāla). Others say that it is from the time of the disappearance of morality.” According to the tradition in Burma, the Sāsana will last five thousand years. The five periods will occur twice. The first half of the Sasana has just passed, with each of the five periods lasting five hundred years. We are now in the second half, when these periods will be repeated, each lasting for another five hundred years.

In the Anāgatavaṃsa commentary, the Buddha is said to preface the account of the future Buddha Ariya Metteyya by saying his own dispensation will disappear in five stages: (1) the disappearance of analytical insight (paṭisambhidā), (2)

the disappearance of the Paths and Fruition States, (3) the disappearance of the practice (paṭipatti), (4) the disappearance of the texts (pariyatti), and (5) the disappearance of the Saṅgha.

Other commentaries also speak in terms of five stages of disappearance (antaradhāna) of the Sāsana: [54] (1) First, there will be the disappearance of attainment (adhigama), which would correspond to the age of deliverance. (2) The second disappearance is of the practice (paṭipatti), which corresponds to the ages of concentration and morality. (3) The disappearance of accomplishment in the texts (pariyatti) is third and corresponds to the age of learning. (4) The fourth disappearance is of the signs (liṅga). During this period, the only good action left is making gifts to those who wear a yellow strip of cloth around their necks, so this would correspond to the age of generosity. When this disappearance occurs, five thousand years will have passed. [55] After this period there occurs (5) the disappearance of the relics (dhātu). When the relics no longer receive honour, they will assemble at the seat where the Buddha attained Awakening under the Great Bodhi tree. There, they will make an effigy of the Buddha and perform a marvel similar to the Twin Marvel and will teach the Doctrine. No human being will be present, only Devas from the ten thousand world systems will listen, and many of them will attain release. After that, the relics will be burned up without remainder. [56]

The Coming of Buddha Ariya Metteyya

In the discourse with which we began, the Buddha goes on to describe how morality among human beings grows stronger and stronger. As a result, their life span grows longer until it reaches eighty thousand years, [57] and at that time, Buddha Metteyya will come. Ashin Buddhaghosa explains that the life span increases to an incalculable number of years (Asaṅkheyya) and then begins to decrease again until it reaches 80,000 years, for Buddhas arise only when the life span is decreasing. [58] A tradition in Burma says that Buddha Metteyya will live for 80,000 years and that the human life span will be 100,000 years, just as Buddha Gotama lived for eighty years when the human life span was one hundred years. No definite number of years is given for the period between Buddha Gotama and Buddha Metteyya. The Anāgatavaṃsa (verse 5) says Buddha Metteyya will arise ten million years later (vassa-koṭiye), but the commentary [59] says this means after many hundreds of thousands times ten million years. [60]

This aeon (kappa) is an Auspicious Aeon (bhaddha-kappa), which means that the maximum number of five Buddhas will arise in the same aeon. Some aeons are empty ones, meaning no Buddhas arise. In other types of aeons, one to four Buddhas arise. Buddha Gotama was the fourth Buddha in this Auspicious Aeon, so Metteyya will be the last Buddha in it. The commentary to the Buddhavaṃsa says that an Auspicious Aeon is very difficult to encounter.

Those who are born in such aeons are usually rich in goodness and happiness. They usually have the three root conditions (of non-greed, non-hatred, and non-confusion) and destroy the defilements. Those with the two root conditions (of non-greed and non-hatred) are usually reborn in good planes of existence, and those with no root condition acquire one. [61] In another commentary, [62] it is said that during the time of Buddha Metteyya, the group of sensual pleasures will have little initial power (to distract).

The Birth of the Next Buddha

Many details concerning the coming Buddha can be assembled by combining Buddha Gotama's prediction in the Dīgha-nikāya, [63] the Anāgatavaṃsa, [64] the two versions of The Ten Bodhisattas, [65] and the Dasavathuppakarana. [66] Further details can be added from the description by Buddha Gotama of the past Buddha Vipassī, [67] Ven. Ānanda's praise of the Buddha, [68] and the commentary on The Chronicle of Buddhas. [69]

Before his last rebirth, which is in the human world, each Bodhisatta resides in the Tusita Deva world. He is mindful and aware when he is reborn there and while he lives there. He lives there as long as his life span lasts. One thousand years before he is to be reborn as a human and become a Buddha, Devas or Brahmās go to the world of men and announce that a Buddha will arise. This is a Buddha tumult. [70]

When the time is right, he descends into his mother's womb, [71] mindful and aware. He is aware it is his last existence. At that time, there is an illimitable, splendid radiance throughout the universe. His mother is protected by four Devas during the gestation period. His mother does not break the five precepts during her pregnancy, and she is not attracted to any man. The mother is surrounded by all the pleasures of the five senses. She suffers from no illness, and she can see the Bodhisatta in her womb. He is seated cross-legged in the womb facing outward.

His mother gives birth in a standing position and in a forest. The Bodhisatta Metteyya will be born in the deer park at Isipatana. [72] The feet of the baby are placed in a golden cloth. He is received first by Devas and afterwards by men. Before his feet touch the ground, four Devas present him to his mother, saying, "Rejoice, lady, for mighty is the son that is born to you." He comes forth without any stain. Two showers of cool and warm water fall from the sky to bathe the mother and the Bodhisatta. He takes seven steps to the north, surveys the four quarters, and pronounces the lion's roar that he is supreme in the world. When he is born, an illimitable, splendid radiance is seen throughout the universe. Seven days after the birth of the Bodhisatta, his mother dies and is reborn in the Tusita Deva world. [73]

When Bodhisatta Metteyya is reborn in the human world, life on earth will be like life in a Deva world. Women will marry at the age of five hundred. There will only be three diseases: desire (to eat) (icchā), sluggishness after eating (anasana), and old age (jarā). [74] India will have Ketumatī (present-day Baranasi) as its capital city. In addition, there will be 84,000 cities with 90,000 crores of princes. [75] India [76] will extend for 100,000 leagues. It will be without thorns, clear, with green grass. There will be grass which is four inches high and soft as cotton. The climate will always be good. The rains will be even, and the winds will be neither too hot nor too cold. The rivers and ponds will not lack water. There will be white sand that is not rough, the size of peas and beans. The country will be like an adorned garden. The villages will be close together, full of people, without interval.

The people will be tranquil, safe, and free from danger. They will be happy and joyful, enjoying festivals. They will have plenty to eat and drink. India will be delightful, like Ālakamanda, the capital city of the Kurus. The capital city of India, [77] Ketumatī, will be twelve leagues long and seven leagues wide. [78] The city will have beautiful lotus ponds, full of water that is fragrant, clear, clean, cool, and sweet. The ponds will be accessible to people at all times. There will be seven rows of palm trees and walls of seven colours, made of jewels, will surround the city.

In squares at the gates of the city, there will be shining wishing trees: one blue, one yellow, one red, and one white. [79] Divine adornments and ornaments as well as all sorts of wealth and possessions will be hanging on the trees.

The Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha

At this time, there will be a Wheel-turning Monarch named Saṅkha. [80] In a past life, he and his father had made a hut for a Pacceka Buddha. They had him stay there for the three months of the rains retreat and then gave him three robes. In the same way, they had seven Pacceka Buddhas stay in the hut. The father and son [81] were reborn in the Tāvatiṃsa Deva world, and Sakka requested that the father be reborn in the human world as Prince Mahā-Panāda. The architect for the Devas, Vissakamma, built a palace for Mahā-Panāda. During the time of Buddha Gotama, Mahā-Panāda was the Elder Bhaddaji, who, on one occasion, raised up the Mahā-Panāda palace from the bottom of the Ganges. The palace still waits there for the future Saṅka, who was the son that gave to the Pacceka Buddhas in the past. [82]

When Saṅkha becomes the Wheel-turning Monarch, he will raise up the Mahā-Panada palace which will serve as his palace in the centre of Ketumatī. The palace is described as resplendent with many jewels, so bright it is hard to look at. [83] And he will possess the seven treasures of a Wheel-turning Monarch: the wheel, elephant, horse, gem, wife, householder, and adviser. [84]

Through the merit of Saṅkha, there will be a square in the middle of the city with four halls facing the four directions with wishing trees. Hanging from the trees there will be all sorts of fine garments, drums, and jewellery.

Through the merit of the people at that time, there will be rice that grows without being cultivated. It will be pure, sweet-smelling, and the grains will be ready-husked. The residents of Ketumatī will have whatever they want. They will be very rich. They will wake up to the sound of drums and lutes. They will be exceedingly happy in both body and mind. [85]

King Saṅkha's palace will have 84,000 dancing girls. [86] He will have one thousand sons, valiant, of heroic forms, crushing enemy armies. [87] The eldest son [88] will be the king's adviser. The king will conquer the sea-girt land (of India) without violence, without a sword, but rather by righteousness.

The Career of Bodhisatta Metteyya

The Bodhisatta will be the son of the Wheel-turning Monarch's head priest, Subrahma, and his wife, Brahmavatī. [89] He will be named Ajita, and he will bear the thirty-two marks and eighty minor marks that are common to Buddhas and Wheel-turning Monarchs. [90] He will lead the household life for eight thousand years. He will have four palaces named: [91] Sirivaḍḍha, Vaḍḍhamāna, Siddhattha, and Candaka. He will have 100,000 dancing girls. [92] His wife will be Candamukhī [93] and his son will be named Brahmavaddhana.

Bodhisattas decide to give up household life after they have seen the four signs (an old man, a sick man, a dead man, and a contented man who has gone forth from lay life) and after a son is born to them. They put on the yellow robe and engage in striving. The Bodhisatta Metteyya will go forth in one of his palaces. Accompanied by his followers, he will fly through the air in the palace and go to the Nāga tree, which will be his Bodhi tree. He will engage in striving for seven days, which is the minimum period.

There is a detailed account of these events in the Dasabodhisatta-uddesa: [94]

At the age of eight thousand years, the Bodhisatta will mount a chariot that resembles a glorious celestial palace and when going to the royal park, he will see the four signs. They will produce the knowledge of a sense of urgency. And he will long for the state of going forth. Then he will return and go up to his palace. His mind will be bent on the state of going forth. At that moment, that jewel palace will fly up by a path in the sky, and he will leap up into the sky, like the king of the golden water fowl, together with his followers.

Then the Devas of the ten thousand world systems will take flowers and honour him. The eighty-four thousand kings (of India), the people from the cities and from the countryside will honour him with perfume and flowers. The king of the Asuras will guard the palace. The king of the Nāgas will take (him) a precious gem, the king of the Supaṇṇas will take (him) a jewel necklace, the king of Gandhabbas will honour him with musical instruments and dancers. The Wheel-turning Monarch, together with his consorts and followers, will go to the Bodhisatta.

By the power of the king and the power of the Great Being, all that crowd will be established in the state of going forth, and the people will rise into the sky with him and go [to the Bodhi tree]. Then, the Mahā-Brahmā will take a sixty-league parasol and hold it [over them]. The Deva king Sakka will blow the Vijayuttara <sup>[95]</sup> conch shell. [The king of the Yāma Devas,] Suyāma, will take a yak's tail fan and honour him. [The king of the Tusita Devas,] Santusita, will hold a jewel fan. [The Gandhabba Deva,] Pañcasikha, will take his celestial lute Velupaṇḍa, <sup>[96]</sup> and play it. The [four Great Deva] Kings, swords in hand, will surround them on all four sides. All those Devas, all those people and Gandhabbas, all those Yakkhas, Nāgas, and Supaṇṇas, surrounding him in front, in back, and on both sides, will go with him. Surrounded by that crowd of Devas, women, etc., of great splendour and beauty, he [the Bodhisatta] will rise into the sky, [and then] descend near the Terrace of Awakening. At that moment, the Mahā-Brahmā will take the eight requisites [of an ascetic] created by his psychic powers and offer them to him. Then the Great Being will cut off the topknot of hair [on his head] and throw it up in the sky. He will take the eight requisites from the hands of the [Mahā-]Brahmā and go forth. For seven days he will make the Great Effort. And all that great crowd [of people] will follow the [example] of the Great Being in going forth.

The Nāga tree where the Bodhisatta will be Awakened is described [97] as being 120 cubits high with four (main) branches 120 or 130 cubits long. There will be 2,000 (minor) branches. [98] The tips of the branches will be bent, (constantly) moving, and will be continually in bloom with blossoms as big as wheels. They will have a heavenly smell, full of pollen. [99] The perfume will spread around for ten leagues, both with and against the wind. The leaves will be a deep green in all seasons and the flowers will scatter on the people all around.

The *Anāgatavaṃsa*F [100] describes the people who go forth with the Buddha, including the names of the most important people among them: He will be accompanied by a large group of people, including friends, ministers, and members of his family. There will be a fourfold army and an assembly of the four castes to go forth with him. There will be 84,000 princesses and 84,000 Brahmās who are skilled in the Vedas. Among the 84,000 there will be the brothers Isidatta and Purāṇa; the twins of unlimited wisdom, Jātimitta and Vijaya; the householder Suddhika and the female disciple Suddhanā; the male disciple Saṅkha and the female disciple Saṅkhā, [101] the householder Saddara and the famous man Sudatta; and the husband and wife Visākha and Yasavatī. Many other citizens and people from the countryside of various social rank will go forth.

The spot on which the Bodhisattas attain Awakening is one of the four fixed places, so Metteyya will make his final bid for liberation on the same spot as all the past Buddhas—the present-day Bodha-gaya. On the day they attain Self-

Awakening, Bodhisattas have a meal of milk-rice. They are seated on a spreading of grass. They use mindfulness of breathing as their preparation for developing insight and shatter the forces of Māra. They attain the three knowledges and the special qualities not shared by others, etc., while still seated in the cross-legged position. And they spend seven weeks near the Tree of Awakening after becoming Self-Awakened. The Anāgatavaṃsa commentary says that from the time he becomes Awakened, Ariya Metteyya will be known as the King of the Buddhas (Buddharājā).

Then the Mahā-Brahmā will request that Buddha Metteyya teach others the path to Nibbāna.

Buddha Metteyya will preach his first discourse, the Setting in Motion of the Wheel of the Doctrine, in Nāgavana ("The Elephant Grove"). [102] The park is said to be in Isipatana near the city of Ketumatī. [103] He will be surrounded by an assembly extending one hundred leagues. A great many Devas will approach him at that time, and he will set free one hundred crores from their bondage. [104] This will be the first occasion when a great number of beings attain penetration (Abhisamaya) into the Four Noble Truths. [105]

Then King Saṅkha will give his jewel palace to the Saṅgha with the Buddha at its head, and he will make a great donation to the poor, the needy, and beggars. Accompanied by his wife and 90,000 crores of people, the king will approach the Buddha. And all that 90,000 crores of people will be ordained with the words 'Come, bhikkhu' (ehi bhikkhu). [106] This will be the second penetration.

After that, the third penetration of 80,000 crores will take place when Devas and men approach the Buddha with a question concerning Arahatsip.

There will be three assemblies (Sannipāta) of Arahats. [107]

The first will include 100,000 crores. This may be, as for many past Buddhas, at the time the Buddha recites the Pātimokkha on the full-moon day of Māgha to an assembly possessing four factors: (1) all the bhikkhus present are ordained with the “Come, bhikkhu” ordination, (2) all have the six types of higher knowledge, (3) all of them come without any previous announcement, and (4) the observance day (Uposatha) is on the fifteenth (day in the bright fortnight). [108]

The second assembly will be at the time the Buddha proclaims the “Invitation” at the end of the rainy season and will include 90,000 crores. For the third assembly, 80,000 crores of Arahats will accompany the Buddha when he goes in seclusion on the Gandhamādana slope of the Himavant mountain range. Otherwise, the Buddha Metteyya will continually be surrounded by 100,000 crores of those who have attained the six types of higher knowledge (abhiññā) and great psychic power. [109]

Buddha Gotama said [110] that just as he was accompanied by a Saṅgha of hundreds of bhikkhus when he wandered around, [111] Buddha Metteyya will be accompanied by thousands.

Buddha Metteyya will go through the countryside teaching the Doctrine, awakening many people. [112] Some will take the three refuges, some will be established in the five precepts, some will undertake the ten skilful actions. There will be some who become ordained, some who attain the four excellent Fruition States, some who will attain analytic insight into the Doctrine, some who will attain the eight excellent perfections, some the three knowledges, and some the six types of higher knowledge. The Teachings of Buddha Metteyya will be widespread. Seeing people who are ready to be Awakened, he will go 100,000 leagues in a moment to cause them to be Awakened.

It is even said that Buddha Metteyya will quench the heat for beings reborn in the lower realms. [113] The first chief disciple will be the Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha who will have the bhikkhu name of Asoka. [114] The second chief disciple will be Brahmadeva. The Buddha's attendant will be named Sīha. The chief women disciples among the bhikkhunīs will be Padumā and Sumanā. The chief lay attendants among the men will be Sumano [115] and Saṅgha; [116] among the women, Yasavatī and Saṅghā. [117]

Wherever he goes, Buddha Metteyya will be accompanied by a great company of Devas honouring him. [118] The Kāmavacarika Devas will make necklaces which will be adorned by the kings of the Nāgas and Supaṅṅas. There will be eight garlands each of gold, silver, jewels, and coral. There will be many hundreds of banners hanging down. Awnings adorned with jewels will resemble the moon. They will be surrounded by nets of bells and jewelled garlands.

They will scatter sweet-smelling flowers and different sorts of (perfumed) powder, both divine and human. And there will be various types of cloth of many colours. Having faith in the Buddha, they will sport all around. And many marvels will take place through the power of Buddha Metteyya's merit. Seeing those marvels, many people will decide they would rather die than abandon him as their refuge. Many of them will attain Awakening, and those who do not will do good deeds which lead to heavenly worlds.

Several other details can be predicted for Buddha Metteyya as they are part of the list of thirty things that are true of all Buddhas: [119] He will live regularly at a monastery at Jetavana. His bed there will be on the same spot as those of past Buddhas. He will perform the Marvel of the Double at the gateway to the city of Sāvattihī. He will teach the Abhidhamma to his mother in the Tāvātimsa Deva world. He will descend from that Deva world at the gateway to the city of Saṅkassa.

He will lay down a rule of training whenever necessary. He will tell the story of one of his past lives (Jātaka) whenever necessary, and he will teach the Buddhavaṃsa (The Chronicle of Buddhas) to a gathering of his relatives.

Several details have to do with his day-to-day habits: he will give a friendly welcome to bhikkhus when they arrive. He will spend the rains retreat where he is invited to and will not leave without asking permission. Each day, he will carry out the duties to be performed before and after meals and for the three watches in the night.

Many details are given about the physical appearance of Buddha Metteyya. [120] He will be eighty-eight cubits [121] high. His chest will be twenty-five cubits in diameter. [122] There will be twenty-two cubits from the soles of his feet to the knees, from the knees to the navel, from the navel to the collar bone, and from the collar bone to the apex of his head. His arms will be twenty-five cubits long. [123] The collar bones will be five cubits. [124] Each finger will be four cubits. Each palm will be five cubits. The circumference of the neck will be five cubits. Each lip will be five cubits. [125] The length of his tongue will be ten cubits. His elevated nose will be seven cubits. Each eye socket will be seven cubits. The eyes themselves will be five cubits. The Anāgatavaṃsa says [126] his eyelashes will be thick, that the eyes will be broad and pure, not winking day or night; [127] and that with his physical eye, he will be able to see large and small things all around for ten leagues without obstruction. The space between the eyebrows will be five cubits. [128] The eyebrows will be five cubits. Each ear will be seven cubits. [129] The circumference of his face will be twenty-five cubits. [130] The spiral of the protuberance on his head [131] will be twenty-five cubits.

Rays of six colours will radiate from his body and illumine the 10,000 world systems. [132] The major and minor marks will always be visible as countless hundreds of thousands of rays [133] which will shine in all directions for twenty-five leagues. [134] Through the merit acquired when the blood flowed from his head when he offered it to Buddha Sirimata, his radiance as a Buddha (Buddha-pathā) will shine from the summit of the world to the lowest of the hells, Avīci, and the offering of his head and the drops of blood will mean that the radiance from the hair between his eyebrows will be unlimited. [135]

People will not be able to distinguish night from day. [136] The only way they will know when it is night is through the sound of bird cries and the closing of the blossoms and leaves of lotuses and water lilies. They will know it is day by the cries of birds going to seek food and the opening of the flowers and leaves of lotuses and water lilies. [137]

Wherever Buddha Metteyya walks, lotuses will spring up for him to step on. [138] This is said to be the result of his great effort in the past life when he was King Saṅkha and went to Buddha Sirimata. [139] The main petals of the lotuses will be thirty cubits, and the minor petals, twenty-five. The stamens will be twenty cubits, [140] the pistils will be sixteen cubits, and they will be full of red pollen. [141]

But even Buddhas are subject to the law of impermanence. Eventually, Buddha Metteyya will attain final Nibbāna. All Buddhas have a meal with meat on the day of their final Nibbāna. Before their final Nibbāna, they will have accomplished 2,400,000 crores of attainments. [142]

According to the Anāgatavaṃsa commentary, when Ariya Metteyya attains final Nibbāna, he will not leave behind his human body (Vipāka-kammaja-rūpa, 'the body produced by the fruition [of volitional actions]’); he will enter the element of Nibbāna (Nibbāna-dhātu) and no relics will remain. Although the poem says his dispensation will last for 180,000 years, [143] the commentary says it will continue for 380,000 years.

How to Meet Buddha Metteyya

The Dasabodhisatta-uddesa and Anāgatavaṃsa both give instructions on what people must do if they are to meet Buddha Metteyya. This is very important for all those who do not attain at least the first stage of Awakening during this Buddha Dispensation, for, as we have seen, Buddha Metteyya will be the last Buddha to arise in this world cycle. If a person does not attain Awakening in this world cycle, it will be extremely difficult to get another opportunity.

In the Dasabodhisatta-uddesa, [144] Buddha Gotama says to Ven. Sāriputta, “Not all men will see my physical body. If they encounter my Teachings (sāsana), give gifts (dāna), observe morality (sīla), and cultivate development of the mind (bhāvana), through the fruit of that, they will be reborn in the time of Buddha Ariya Metteyya.”

These three actions are the basis of meritorious action (puñña). [145] Through these actions a person can be assured of rebirth in the higher planes of existence. Developing the mind leads to the temporary purity attained through the Jhāna states. But it can also lead to insight (Vipassanā) and true liberation.

The Anāgatavaṃsa [146] gives more details. In order to meet Buddha Metteyya, people should put forth effort (virīya) and be firm (dalha), with agitated mind (ubbigga-mānasa). We can surmise that “agitated mind” means the profound stirring of the mind or sense of urgency (saṃvega) that comes from realising the urgent need to work for liberation. All those who do good deeds and who are vigilant—whether they are bhikkhus, bhikkhunīs, laymen, or laywomen—will be able to encounter the next Buddha. All those who pay great honour to the Buddha will see the auspicious assembly of Buddha Metteyya. The holy life (brahma-cariya) should be practised. Gifts (dāna) should be given. The Observance days (Uposatha) should be kept. Loving kindness (mettā) should be carefully developed. By delighting in vigilance and meritorious actions, it will be possible to eventually make an end to misery (dukkha).

Ven. Ledi Sayadaw [147] points out that it is necessary to make balanced effort in terms of good conduct (carāṇa) and right knowledge (vijjā) if one is to meet the next Buddha.

Right conduct means developing morality (sīla) and concentration (samādhi). Knowledge means developing wisdom (paññā). Right conduct can be compared to having sound limbs. Right knowledge can be compared to being able to see. If one or the other is missing, a person will be unsuccessful. A person may be generous and keep the permanent moral rules of the five precepts and the eight precepts on Observance days, but if the seeds of knowledge are not planted, that person may meet Buddha Metteyya but not be able to be Awakened. If only knowledge is developed, wrong conduct will mean that the chances of encountering the next Buddha will be slight, due to the intervening period (antara-kappa) between this Buddha Dispensation and the next one.

Examples of wrong conduct mentioned by Ven. Ledi Sayadaw are: not being generous, being poorly guarded in physical actions, being unrestrained in speech, and unclean in thought. Such conduct will mean rebirth in the lower realms, either in the next life or in a future life. If people who act in this way do manage to be reborn in a higher world, their lack of generosity will mean they will encounter hardships, trials, and tribulations in making a living. Through not keeping the precepts, they are likely to meet with disputes, quarrels, anger, and hatred; and they will be susceptible to diseases and ailments. This will make it even harder to avoid actions leading to the lower worlds.

It may be possible, however, that a person today has already prepared in the past for attaining Awakening. If the right effort is made in this life, that person can reach at least the first stage of Awakening and become a Sotāpanna. Then, it will be impossible to do any action that results in rebirth in the lower realms. This will not necessarily mean that such a person will miss the opportunity to see the next Buddha. Eventually, as a Non-returner, he or she can be reborn in the Suddhāvāsa Brahmā worlds, and life in these worlds can span the careers of several Buddhas. [148]

If a person who has enough perfections (pāramī) to reach Awakening in this lifetime does not make the necessary effort, it may be possible to become a Sotāpanna in the next life in the Deva worlds. If such a person does not practise the factors leading to Awakening, he or she will miss out entirely during this Buddha's Dispensation and will only be able to attain release during the next Buddha's Dispensation.

Ven. Ledi Sayadaw's instructions concerning the necessary work to be done in this life include what should be done by a person who practises bare insight meditation. [149] One should fulfil the first eleven of the fifteen good actions (caraṇa-dhammā), [150] that is to say, all except the Jhāna states. The first four actions are: (1) being moral, [151] (2) guarding the sense doors, (3) being moderate in eating, and (4) wakefulness.

The next seven qualities are the seven good states (saddhammā) which the Buddha compared to the various protections for the citizens of a royal border town: [152]

- (1) Faith (saddhā) in the Buddha is like a deeply embedded pillar.
- (2) Modesty (hiri) is like a deep, wide moat and means the disciple is ashamed of wrong conduct in body, speech, and mind.
- (3) Shrinking from doing wrong (ottappa) is like a high, wide road surrounding the city and means the disciple is concerned with avoiding wrong conduct in body, speech, and mind.

(4) Being of great learning (bahu-sacca) is like a great armoury of spears and swords. A person who has heard much, who remembers what was heard, and who treasures it means a person who knows the Buddha's Doctrine.

(5) Energy (virīya) is like a large army protecting the city, for a person should rouse energy to get rid of unskilled mental states, to acquire skilled mental states, to be steadfast, firm in advance, and persevere with skilled mental states.

(6) Mindfulness (sati) is like a wise, intelligent gate keeper who refuses entrance to unknown people and only lets in those who are known. A person should have the highest degree of mindfulness and discrimination.

(7) Wisdom (paññā) is like a high, wide rampart covered with plaster. A person should possess wisdom leading to (the cutting off of) rise and fall, with the noble penetration leading to the complete destruction of misery.

All seven of these good states enable a person to abandon wrong actions and cultivate good actions, to abandon what is blameworthy and develop blamelessness. Thus he develops purity.

We need not worry about whether we will be able to attain the goal of Nibbāna in this life or whether we will only be able to do so under Buddha Ariya Metteyya. If we make the best effort we can, such questions will take care of themselves. We must grow as much as possible in sīla, samādhi, and paññā, confident that in this way we will be able to come to the end of all suffering.

Truth Will Triumph!

Appendix A:

The Chronicle of the Future Buddha Anāgatavaṃsa Pāḷi [153]

Namo Tassa Bhagavato Arahato Sammā-Sambudhassa

1 Sāriputto mahā-pañño Upatisso vināyako dhamma-senāpati dhīro upetvā loka-nāyakaṃ

*2 anāgataṃ jin' ārabha āpucchi kaṅkham attano:
tuyh' ānantariko dhīro Buddho kīdisako bhava?*

*3 vitthāren' eva taṃ sotum iccham', ācikkha cakkhumā.
therassa vacanaṃ sutvā bhagavā etad abravi:*

*4 anappakaṃ puñña-rāsiṃ Ajitassa mahā-yasaṃ na sakkā sabbaso vattum vitthāren' eva kassa-ci;
eka-desena vakkhāmi, Sāriputta, suṇohi me.*

*5 imasmiṃ Bhaddake kappe ajāte vassa-koṭiye
Metteyyo nāma nāmena sambuddho dvipad' uttamo*

6 mahā-puñño mahā-pañño mahā-nānī mahā-yaso mahabbalo mahā-thāmo uppajjissati cakkhumā;

7 mahā-gati sati c' eva dhītimā bāhusaccavā saṅkhāto sabba-dhammānaṃ nāto di ho suphassito pariyogā!ho parāmattho uppajjissati so jino.

8 tadā Ketumatī nāma rājadhāni bhavissati
dvādasa-yojan'-āyāmā satta-yojana-vitthatā,

9 ākiṇṇā nara-nārīhi, pāsādehi vicittitā, sevitā suddha-sattehi, ajeyyā dhamma-rakkhitā.

10 Saṅkho nām' āsi so rājā ananta-bala-vāhano,
satta-ratana-sampanno, cakkavattī mahabbalo,

11 iddhimā yasavā c' eva sabba-kāma-samappito;
hata-paccatthikaṃ khemaṃ anusāsissati dhammato.

12 pāsādo sukato tattha dibba-vimāna-sādiso
puññakammabhinibbato nānā-ratana-cittito

13 vedikāhi parikkhitto suvibhatto manoramo pabhassar' accuggato se ho duddikkho cakkhu-musano

14 rañño Mahā-Panādassa pavatto ratanāmayo taṃ yūpaṃ ussapetvāna Saṅkho rājā vasissati.

15 athapi tasmimṃ nagare nānā-vīthī tahiṃ-tahiṃ
sumāpitā pokkharāṇi ramaṇīyā supatitthā

16 acchodakā vipprasannā sādu-sītā sugandhikā sama-titthikā kāka-peyyā atho vāluka-saṃthatā

17 padum' uppala-saṃchannā sabbotuka-m-anāva ā.
satt' eva tāla-pantiyo sattavaṇṇika-pākārā

18 ratanamayā parikkhittā nagarasmiṃ samantato.

Kusāvati rājadhānī tadā Ketumatī bhavē.

19 catukke nagare-dvāre kappa-rukkhā bhavissare nīlaṃ pītaṃ lohitaṃ odātaṃ ca pabhassarā.

20 nibbattā dibba-dussāni dibbā c' eva pasādhanā upabhoga-paribhogā ca sabbe tatthūpalambare.

21 tato nagara-majjhamhi catu-sālaṃ caturmukhaṃ puññakammabhiniḥḥatto kappa-rukkho bhavissati.

*22 kappāsikan ca koseyyaṃ khoma-kodumbarāni ca
puññakammabhiniḥḥattā kappa-rukkhesu lambare.*

*23 pāṇissarā mutiṅgā ca muraj' ālambarāni ca
puññakammabhiniḥḥattā kappa-rukkhesu lambare.*

*24 parihārakan ca kāyūraṃ gīveyyaṃ ratanāmayāṃ
puññakammabhiniḥḥattā kappa-rukkhesu lambare.*

25 uṇṇataṃ mukhaphullan ca aṅgadā maṇi-mekhalā puññakammabhiniḥḥattā kapparukkkhesu lambare.

*26 aññe ca nānā-vividhā sabb' ābharaṇabhūsanā
puññakammabhiniḥḥattā kappa-rukkhesu lambare.*

27 āropitaṃ sayāṃ-jātaṃ puññakammēna jantunaṃ akaṇaṃ aṭṭha-sālikāṃ sālīṃ paribhunjanti mānūsā.

28 dve sakala-sahassāni dve sakala-satāni ca sakalā sattati c' eva ambaṇaṃ soḷasaṃ bhavē.

29 atho pi dve ca tumbāni taṇḍulāni pavuccare eka-bīje samuppanna puññakammēna jantunaṃ.

30 ye Ketumatiyā viharanti Saṅkhassa vijite narā
tadā pi te bhavissanti guṇi-kāyūradhārino

31 sampuṇṇa-mana-saṅkappā sumukhā thūla-kuṇḍalā hari-candana-litt'-aṅgā kāsik' uttama-dhārino

32 bahūta-vittā dhanino vīṇā-tāla-ppabodhanā accanta-sukhitā niccaṃ kāya-cetasikena ca.

33 dasa yojanasahassāni Jambūdīpo bhavissati akaṇ ako agahano samo harita-saddalo.

34 tayo rogā bhavissanti icchā anasanaṃ jarā, pancavassasat' itthīnaṃ vivāhā ca bhavissanti;

35 samaggā sakhilā niccaṃ avivādā bhavissare.
sampannā phala-pupphehi latā gumba-vanā dumā,

36 catur-aṅgulā tiṇa-jāti mudukā tūla-sannibhā.
natisītā naccuṇha ca sama-vassā manda-mālutā

37 sabbadā utusampannā, anūnā talākā nadī.
tahiṃ-tahiṃ bhūmi-bhāge akharā suddha-vālukā
kalāya-mugga-mattiyo vikiṇṇa mutta-sādisā.

38 alaṃkatuyyānam iva ramaṇīyā bhavissati.
gāmanigamā ākiṇṇā accāsanne tahiṃ-tahiṃ

39 naḷaveḷu-vanam iva brahā kukku a-sampati avīci maññe va phuṭṭhā manussehi bhavissare,

40 pagāḷham nara-nārīhi sampuṇṇā phu abhedanā
iddhā phītā ca khemā ca anīti anupaddavā.

41 sadā-rati sadā-khiddā ekanta-sukha-samappitā

nakkhatte vicarissanti tuṭṭha-haṭṭhā pamoditā.

*42 bahv-añña-pānā bahu-bhakkhā bahu-maṃsa-surodakā
Ālakamandā va devānam visālā rājadhāni va
Kurūnaṃ ramaṇīyo va Jambūdīpo bhavissati.*

43 Ajito nāma nāmena Metteyyo dvipaduttamo anubyanjana-sampanno dvattiṃsavara-lakkhaṇo

44 suvaṇṇa-vaṇṇo vigata-rajo supabhāso jutimḍharo yasaggappatto sirimā abhirūpo sudassano

*45 mahanubhāvo asamo jāyissati brahmaṇa-kule.
mahaddhano mahā-bhogo mahā ca kula-m-uttamo akkhitto jāti-vādena jāyissati brahmaṇa-kule.*

46 Siriyaḍḍho Vaḍḍhamāno ca Siddhattho c' eva Candako Ajitatthāya uppannā pāsādā ratanāmayā.

47 nāriyo sabbaṅgasampannā sabbābharaṇa-bhūsitā mahāmajjhimakā cūlā Ajitassa paricārikā,

*48 anūnā satasahassā nāriyo samalaṅkatā.
Candamukhī nāma nārī, putto so Brahmavaddhano.*

49 ramissati ratisampanno modamāno mahā-sukhe, anubhutvā yasaṃ sabbaṃ Nandane Vāsavo yathā

*50 atṭha vassa-sahassāni agāramhi vasissati.
kadā-ca rati-m-atthāya gacchaṃ uyyāne kīlitaṃ*

51 kāmesv ādīnavaṃ dhīro bodhisattāna dhammatā nimitte caturō disvā kāma-rati-vināsane

52 jīṇṇaṃ vyādhitakaṃ c' eva matan ca gata-m-āyukaṃ

sukhitaṃ pabbajitaṃ disvā sabbabhūtanukampako

53 nibbiṇṇo kāma-ratīyā anapekkho mahā-sukhe anuttaraṃ santa-padaṃ esaṃāno Ñbhikkhami.

54 sattaham padhāna-cāraṃ caritvā purisuttamo pāsāden' eva laṅghitvā nikkhamissati so jino.

*55 mittamacca-sahāyehi nāti-sālohitehi ca
caturaṅgini-senāya parisāhi catuvaṇṇīhi*

56 caturāsīti sahassehi rāja-kannāhi purekkhato mahatā jana-kāyena Ajito pabbajissati.

*57 caturāsīti sahasāni brahmaṇā veda-pāragū
Metteyyasmiṃ pabbajite pabbajissanti te tadā.*

58 Isidatto Purāṇo ca ubhayo te pi bhātaro caturāsīti sahasāni pabbajissanti te tadā.

*59 Jātimitto Vijayo ca yugā amita-buddhino
paccupessanti sambuddhaṃ caturāsīti-sahassato.*

60 Suddhiko nāma gahapati Sudhanā ce upāsikā paccupessanti sambuddhaṃ caturāsīti-sahassato.

*61 Saṅkho nāma upāsako Saṅkhā nāma upāsikā
paccupessanti sambuddhaṃ caturāsīti-sahassato.*

*62 Sudhano nāma gahapati Sudatto iti vissuto
paccupessanti sambuddhaṃ caturāsīti-sahassato.*

63 itthī Yasavatī nāma Visākhā iti vissutā caturāsīti-sahassehi nāra-nārīhi purekkhitā

64 nikkhamissanti nekkhammaṃ Metteyyassanusāsane.

aññe nāgarikā c' eva tato jānapadā bahū khattiyā brahmaṇā vessā suddā c' eva anappakā

*65 nekkhammabhimukhā hutvā nānā-jaccā mahā-janā
Metteyyassanupabbajjaṃ pabbajissanti te tadā.*

66 yasmim ca divase dhīro nekkhammaṃ abhinikkhami nikkhanta-divase yeva bhodi-maṇḍam upehiti.

67 aparājita-nisabha-ṭhāne bodhipallaṅka-m-uttame pallaṅkena nisīditva bujjhissati mahā-yaso.

68 upetvā uyyāna-varaṃ phullaṃ Nagavanaṃ jino anuttaraṃ dhamma-cakkaṃ evaṃ so vattayissati:

69 dukkhaṃ dukkha-samuppādaṃ dukkhassa ca atikkamaṃ ariyaṃ aṭṭhaṅgikaṃ maggaṃ dukkhūpasama-gāmiṇaṃ.

70 tadā manussā hessanti samantā sata-yojane parisā loka-nāthassa dhammaccaka-pavattane.

71 tato bhiiyo bahū devā upessanti taḥiṃ jinaṃ, nesaṃ mocessati tadā bandhanā sahassa-koṭiṇaṃ.

72 tadā so Saṅkha-rājā ca pāsādaṃ ratanāmayaṃ jinapāmokkha-saṅghassa niyyādetvā, punaparam

73 mahā-dānam daditvāna kapaṇiddhika-vaṇibbake, taramāna-rūpo sambuddhaṃ deviyā saha-m-ekato

74 mahārājanubhāvena ananta-bala-vāhano navuti-koṭi-sahassehi saddhiṃ jinaṃ upehiti.

75 tadā hanissati sambuddho dhamma-bheriṃ varuttamaṃ amatadudrabhi-nigghosaṃ catusacca-pakāsanam.

76 rañño anucarā janatā navuti-sahassa-koṭiyo, sabbe va te nivavasesā bhavissant' ehi-bhikkhukā.

77 tato devā manussā ca upetvā loka-nāyakam
arahatta-varam ārabha panham pucchissare jinaṃ.

78 tesam jino byākareyya, arahatta-vara-pattiyā asīti-koṭi-sahassehi tatiyabhibasmayo bhava.

79 khīṇāsavānam vimalānam santa-cittāna tādinaṃ koṭi-sata-sahassānam paṭhamo hessati samāgamo.

80 vassam vu hassa bhagavato abhighu he pavāraṇe navuti-koṭi-sahassehi pavāressati so jino.

81 yadā ca Himavantamhi pabbate Gandhamādane
hema-rajata-pabbhāre paviveka-gato muni

82 asīti-koṭi-sahassehi santa-cittehi tādihī khīṇāsavehi vimalehi kīḷissati jhāna-kīḷitaṃ.

83 koṭi-sata-sahassāni chalabhiññā mahiddhikā
Metteyyaṃ loka-nāthaṃ taṃ parivāressanti sabbadā,

84 paṭisambhidāsu kusalā nirutti-pada-kovidā
bahu-ssutā dhamma-dharā viyattā saṅgha-sobhanā

85 sudantā soratā dhīrā parivāressanti taṃ jinaṃ.
purekkhato tehi bhikkhūhi nāgo nāgehi tādihī
tiṇṇo tiṇṇehi santehi saddhiṃ santi-samāgato

86 saddhiṃ sāvaka-saṅghehi pavāretvā mahā-muni anukampako kāruṇiko Metteyyo divopaduttamo

87 uddharanto bahu-satte nibbāpento sa-devake

gāma-nigama-rājadhāniṃ carissati cārikaṃ jino.

*88 āhantivā dhamma-bheriṃ dhamma-saṅkha-palāpanaṃ
dhamma-yāgaṃ pakittento dhamma-dhajaṃ samussayaṃ*

89 nadanto sīha-nādaṃ va vattento cakkam uttamaṃ rasuttamaṃ sacca-pānaṃ pāyanto nara-nārinaṃ

90 hitāya sabba-sattānaṃ nāthanāthaṃ mahā-janaṃ bodhento bodhaneyyānaṃ carissati cārikaṃ jino.

91 kassa-ci saraṇāgamane nivesessati cakkhumā kassa-ci panca-sīlesu kassa-ci kusale dasa,

92 kassa-ci dassati sāmaññaṃ caturo phala-m-uttame, kassa-ci asame dhamme dassati paṭisambhidā,

93 kassa-ci vara-sampattī aṭṭha dassati cakkhumā, kassa-ci tisso vijjāyo chaḷ abhiññā pavacchati.

94 tena yogena jana-kāyaṃ ovaḍissati so jino, tadā vitthārikaṃ hessaṃ Metteyya-jina-sāsaṇaṃ.

95 bodhaneyya-janaṃ disvā sata-sahasse pi yojane khaṇena upagantvāna bodhayissati so muni.

96 mātā Brahmavatī nāma Subrahmā nāma so pitā purohito Saṅkha-rañño Metteyyassa tadā bhava.

97 Asoko Brahmadevo ca aggā hessanti sāvakā, Sīho nāma upaṭṭhāko upaṭṭhissati taṃ jinaṃ.

98 Padumā c' eva Sumanā ca aggā hessanti sāvikā, Sumano c' eva Saṅkho ca bhavissant' aggupaṭṭhakā,

99 Yasavatī ca Saṅkhā ca bhavissant' aggupaṭṭhikā.

bodhi tassa bhagavato Nāgarukkho bhavissati

100 vīsa-hattha-sata-kkhandho, sākhā vīsa-satāni ca saṁvellitagga lulitā, mora-hattho va sobhati.

101 supupphitaggā satataṃ surabhi-deva-gandhikā nālī-pūrā bhava reṇu suphullā cākka-mattakā

102 anuvāta-pa ivātamhi vāyati dasa yojane ajjhokirissati pupphāni bodhi-maṇḍe samantato.

103 samāgantvā jānapadā ghāyitvā gandham uttamaṃ vākyaṃ nicchārayissanti tena gandhena moditā:

*104 sukho vipāko puññanaṃ Buddha-se hassa tādino
yassa tejena pupphānaṃ acinteyyo pavāyati.*

105 aṭṭhāsīti bhava hattho āyāmen' eva so jino, uraṃ bhava paṇṇavīsaṃ vikkhambhe tassa satthuno.

106 visāla-netto alārakkhi visuddha-nayano isi, animisaṃ divā-rattiṃ aṇu thūlaṃ maṃsa-cakkhunā

*107 anāvāraṇaṃ passeyya samantā dvādasa-yojanaṃ;
pabhā niddhāvati tassa yāvataṃ paṇṇavīsati.*

108 sobhati vijju-laṭṭhī va dīpa-rukkho va so jino, ratanagghika-saṅkāso bhānumā viya bhāhiti.

109 lakkhaṇanubyanjanā raṃsī dissanti sabbākalikā, patanti viividhā raṃsī aneka-sata-sahassiyo.

110 pāduddhāre pāduddhāre suphullā paduma ruhā, tiṃsa-hatthā samā pattā, anupattā paṇṇavīsati,

111 kesarā vīsati-hatthā, kaṇṇikā soḷasaṃ bhava,

suratta-reṇu-bharitā padumā kokāsa-m-antare.

112 *Kāmavacarikā devā nimminissanti agghike,
Nāga-rājā ca Supaṇṇā ca tadā te Nīlaṅkarissare;*

113 *aṭṭha sovaṇṇayā agghī aṭṭha rūpimayāni ca
aṭṭha maṇimayā agghī aṭṭha pavālamayāni ca.*

114 aneka-ratana-saṃcitā dhajamālā-vibhūsitā lambamānā kīlissanti dhajā neka-satā bahū.

115 maṇi-mutta-dāma-bhūsitā vitānā soma-sannibhā parikkhittā kiṅkaṇika-jālā vataṃsaka-ratanā bahū.

116 nānā-pupphā vikirissanti surabhogandha-sugandhikā vividhā nānā-cuṇṇāni dibba-mānussakāni ca.

117 vicittā nānā-dussāni pancavaṇṇika-sobhanā abhipasannā Buddhasmiṃ kīlissanti samantato.

118 *tattha sahasa-m-ubbedhā dossaneyyā manoramā
ratanagghika-toraṇā asambādhā susaṃ hitā*

119 *sobhamānā padissanti visālā sabbato-pabhā.
tesaṃ majjha-gato Buddho bhikkhusaṅghapurekkhato*

120 *Brahmā va pārisajjānaṃ Indo va vimānantare.
gacchanti Buddhe gacchante, tiṭṭhamānamhi thassare,*

121 *nisinne sayite capi satthari saha-pārise
catu-iriyāpathe niccaṃ dhārayissanti sabbadā.*

122 *eta c' aññā ca pūjāyo dibba-mānussakā pi ca
vividhāni pāṭihīrāni hessanti sabbakālikā*

123 anantapuñña-tejena Metteyyam abhipūjituṃ.

disvāna taṃ pāṭihīraṃ nānā-jaccā mahā-janā

*124 sa-putta-dārā pāṇehi saraṇaṃ hessanti satthuno.
ye brahmacariyaṃ carissanti sutvāna munino vacaṃ*

te tarissanti saṃsāraṃ maccudheyyaṃ suduttaraṃ.

125 bahu ggihi dhamma-cakkhuṃ visodhessanti te tadā dasahi puñña-kiriyāhi tīhi sucaritehi ca

126 āgamadhigamen' eva sodhayitvāna s' ādaram anudhamma-cārino hutvā bahū saggūpagā bhava.

*127 na sakkā sabbaso vattuṃ ettakaṃ iti vā yasaṃ.
accanta-sukhitā niccaṃ tasmim gate kāla-sampade*

128 mahā-yasā sukhenapi āyu-vaṇṇa-balena ca dibba-sampatti vā tesam mānussānaṃ bhavissati.

129 anubhutvā kāma-sukhaṃ addhānaṃ yāvaticchakaṃ te pacchā sukhitā yeva nibbissant' āyu-saṅkhayā;

130 asīti-vassa-sahassāni tadā āyu bhavissare, tāvata tiṭṭhamāno so tāressati jane bahū.

*131 paripakka-mānase satte bodhayitvāna sabbaso
avasesadiṭṭhasaccānaṃ maggamaggam anusāsiyā*

132 dhammokkaṃ dhamma-nāvaṇ ca dhammādāsan ca osadhaṃ

sakkaccena hi sattānaṃ ṭhapetvā āyatiṃ-jane

133 saddhiṃ sāvakaṅghena kata-kiccena tādinā jalitvā aggikkhandho va nibbāyissati so jino.

134 parinibbutamhi sambuddhe sāsanaṃ tassa hāhiti

vassasata-sahassāni asīti c' eva saḥassato;

tato paraṃ antaradhānaṃ loke hessati dāruṇaṃ.

135 evaṃ aniccā saṅkhārā addhuvā tāvakālikā, ittarā bhedanā c' eva jajjarā rittakā bhavā,

136 tucchamuṭṭhi-samā suñña-saṅkhārā bāla-lāpanā, na kassa-ci vaso tattho vattati iddhimassa pi;

*137 evaṃ ñatvā yathā-bhūtaṃ nibbinde sabba-saṅkhate.
dullabho purisājañño, na so sabbattha jāyati;
yattha so jāyati dhīro taṃ kulaṃ sukham edhati.*

138 tasmā Metteyya-buddhassa dassanatthāya vo idha ubbiggamānasā sutṭhuṃ karotha viriyaṃ dalhaṃ.

*139 ye keci kata-kalyāṇā appamādavihārino
bhikkhū bhikkhuniyo c' eva upāsakā upāsikā*

140 mahantaṃ Buddha-sakkāraṃ ulāraṃ abhipūjayuṃ dakkhinti bhadra-samitiṃ tasmim kāle sa-devakā.

*141 caratha brahmacariyaṃ. Detha dānaṃ yathā Ñrahaṃ.
uposathaṃ upavasatha, mettaṃ bhāvetha sādhukaṃ.*

*142 appamāda-ratā hotha puññakiriyāsu sabbadā.
idh' eva katvā kusalam dukkhass' antaṃ karissathā ti.
Anāgatavaṃso nitṭhito.*

Translation

Praise to That One, the Blessed One, the Noble One, the Fully Self-Awakened One

1 Sāriputta of great wisdom, the leader Upatissa, the firm general of the Doctrine, approached the leader of the world

2–3 and asked the Conqueror about his own doubts with reference to the future Buddha: “What will the wise Buddha immediately after you be like? I wish to hear this in detail. Please tell me, o Seeing One.”

Hearing the Thera’s words, the Blessed One said this:

4 It is not possible for anyone to describe at length Ajita’s great accumulated merit which is not small, which is of great fame. I will tell [you about] it in part. Listen, o Sāriputta.

5 In this auspicious world cycle, in the future, in a crore of years, there will be an Awakened One named Metteyya, best of men,

6 of great merit, great wisdom, great knowledge, great fame, great power, great steadfastness; he will be born, one who sees.

7 Having great rebirth, [great] mindfulness, full of wisdom, of great learning, he will be a preacher, a knower, one who sees well, who touches and plunges into the highest goal. He will be born, that Conqueror.

8 At that time, there will be a royal city named

Ketumatī, twelve leagues long and seven leagues wide, 9 full of men and women, adorned with palaces, frequented by men and women, incomparable, rightly protected.

10 There will be a king named Saṅkha, of limitless strength and vehicles, possessing the seven jewels, a Wheel-turning Monarch of great power,

11 having psychic powers, fame, enjoying all sensual pleasures; and he will preach the doctrine of quiescence that destroys all its opponents.

12 A well-made palace there, like a divine palace, will arise through his merit. [It will be] resplendant with many jewels,

13 surrounded by balustrades, well designed,
delightful, resplendant, very tall, the best, hard to look at, harming the eyes.

14 The jewel palace that came into existence for King
Mahā-Panādassa will rise up for him and King Saṅkha will live in it.

15 And then, in that city, there will be various streets here and there, delightful lotus ponds, well built, with beautiful banks,

16 full to the brim of fragrant, clear, clean, cool, sweet water, [with banks] strewn with sand,

17 [ponds] covered with red and blue lotuses, accessible to all people at all times. There will be seven rows of palm trees and walls of seven colours

18 made of jewels encircling all the city. The royal city of Kusavātī at that time will be Ketumatī

19 In squares at the gate[s] of the city there will be shining wishing trees, [one] blue, [one] yellow, [one] red, and [one] white.

20 There will have come into being divine clothes and divine ornaments hanging there, all sorts of wealth and possessions.

21 At that time, in the middle of the city, there will be four halls, facing the four directions, and there will be [another] wishing tree produced by his merit.

22 Hanging from those wishing trees there will be cotton cloth, sheaths, flaxen cloth of Kodum produced by his merit.

23 Hanging from those wishing trees there will be tambourines, tambours, and small drums produced by his merit.

24 Hanging from those wishing trees there will be encircling bracelets and necklaces made of jewels produced by his merit.

25 Hanging from those wishing trees there will be “high” ornaments, “blooming-face” ornaments, bracelets and girdles produced by his merit.

26 And hanging from those wishing trees there will be many other ornaments and decorations of different sorts.

27 Through the action of beings' merits, men will enjoy self-generated rice that has no "dust," no chaff, that is pure, sweet-smelling, with grains ready husked, ripened without cultivation.

28 A sixteenth of [today's] ambāṇa [measure] will be 2,270 cartloads.

29 And at that time one grain will produce two tumbas—they are called rice grains—produced by the action of beings' merits.

30 The men who live in Ketumatī in the kingdom of Saṅkha will wear armour and bracelets.

31 Whatever they want will be fulfilled. They will have happy faces. They will wear large earrings. Their bodies will be covered with yellow sandalwood paste. They will wear garments from Kāsi.

32 They will be of great wealth, rich; they will be waked by drums and lutes. They will constantly be exceedingly happy in body and mind.

33 Jambūdīpa will be ten thousand leagues, without thorns, clear, with green grass.

34 There will be three diseases: desire, hunger, and old age. The women will marry at the age of five hundred.

35 They will always be in unity, congenial, without disputes. The vines, trees, and bushes will be equipped with fruit and flowers.

36 There will be a grass four-inches high that will be as soft as cotton. There will be even rains and gentle winds, neither too hot nor too cold.

37 There will always be a beautiful climate. The rivers and ponds will not lack [in water]. Here and there in the districts, the pure sand will not be rough. It will be scattered around like pearls the size of peas and beans.

38 It will be delightful like an adorned garden. Here and there, there will be villages and towns very close together and full of people.

39 [The villages and towns] will be like a great forest of reeds and bamboo, full of people, I think, at a cockflight's [distance], without interval.

40 Trading cities will be filled with men and women who will be prosperous, rich and tranquil, free from danger and in good health.

41 They will wander about festivals, always joyful, always playing, extremely happy. They will rejoice, happy and pleased.

42 There will be much food and water, much to eat, much meat, drink, and water. Jambūdīpa will be delightful, like the Ālakamandā of the Devas or the broad capital of the Kurus.

43–45 One named Ajita [will be born], Metteyya, the best of two-footed beings, with the thirty-two excellent marks and the [eighty] minor characteristics, of golden complexion, without stain, very splendid, resplendent, of the highest fame, glorious, of perfect form, of good sight, of great power, incomparable. He will be born in a Brahman family, with great wealth and possessions, and of excellent family. There will be no dispute concerning his birth.

46 [Four] palaces made of jewels will have come into being for Ajita: Sirivaḍḍha, Vaḍḍhamāna, Siddhattha, and Candaka.

47 Ajita's female attendants will be women perfect in all their limbs, adorned with [all kinds of] ornaments, small, medium, and large.

48 There will be a complete [retinue of] one hundred thousand women fully adorned. Candamukhī will be his wife. Brahmavaddhana will be his son.

49 He will delight in great happiness, be joyful, and endowed with pleasure. He will enjoy all fame like Nandana and Vāsava.

50 He will live in a household for eight thousand years. At some time, he will go to a park for pleasure to amuse himself.

51 Seeing the danger in sensual pleasures and being wise in accordance with the nature of Bodhisattas, he will see the four signs which destroy sensual pleasures:

52 an old man, a sick man, a dead man, and a happy wanderer. He will go forth. Having sympathy for all beings,

53 he will become averse to sensual pleasures. Not looking for the unsurpassed, great happiness and bliss in seeking honour, he will go forth.

54 He will undertake the practice of exertion for seven days. That Conqueror will go forth, leaping up [into the air] with his palace.

55–56 Ajita will go forth, honoured by a great group of people, friends and companions, blood relatives, a fourfold army, an assembly of the four castes, and 84,000 princesses.

57 When Metteyya has gone forth, at that time, 84,000 Brahmans who are skilled in the Vedas will go forth.

58 At that time, both of the brothers, Isidatta and Purāṇa will go forth [with] 84,000 [other people].

59 The twins, Jātimitta and Vijaya, of unlimited wisdom, will approach that Perfect Buddha from the 84,000.

60 The householder named Suddhika and the lay woman Sudhanā will approach the perfect Buddha from that 84,000.

61 The lay disciple named Saṅgha and the lay woman named Saṅghā will approach that perfect Buddha from the 84,000.

62 The householder named Saddhara and the renowned Sudatta will approach that perfect Buddha out of the 84,000.

63 The woman named Yasavatī and the renowned Visākhā will be honoured by men and women.

64 They will go forth in renunciation on the admonition of Metteyya. Other citizens and many people from the country, and no few nobles, Brahmans, merchants, and workers, 65 inclined to renunciation, a great crowd of all sorts of birth, will then go forth, following the going forth of Metteyya.

66 On the day that Wise One goes forth in renunciation, on that very day of renouncing, he will approach the dais of the tree of awakening.

67 In the place of the unconquered Bulls Among Men, on that supreme seat of awakening, seated in a cross-legged position, the One of Great Fame will be awakenend.

68 The Conqueror will go to the excellent garden Nāgavana in full flower, and there he will set in motion the incomparable Wheel of the Doctrine: 69 misery, the arising of misery, the overcoming of misery, and the Noble Eightfold Path leading to the cessation of misery.

70 Then, there will be a gathering of men all around for one hundred leagues when that protector of the world sets in motion the Wheel of the Doctrine.

71 Then, very many Devas will approach the Conqueror there, and he will free 100,000 crores from their bondage.

72–73 Then, that king Saṅkha, having given his jewel palace to the Saṅgha with the Conqueror at its head, having given another great gift to the poor, the needy, and to beggars, hurrying along with this queen, he will approach the Perfect Buddha.

74 Through the power of the great king and his limitless force of charriots, he will approach the Conqueror accompanied by 90,000 crores [of people].

75 Then the Perfect Buddha will beat the drum of the Doctrine, the excellent and highest sound of the kettle drum of the undying, making known the Four Truths.

76 The company of people accompanying the king, all 90,000 crores without exception, will become “Come Bhikkhu” monks.

77 Then Devas and men will approach the Leader of the World and ask the Conqueror a question concerning Arahatsip.

78 That Conqueror will answer them and 80,000 crores will attain Arahatsip. That will be the third penetration. 79 The first assembly will be of 100,000 crores of those whose taints are destroyed, who are spotless, of peaceful minds, venerable ones.

80 When the Blessed One proclaims the Invitation [to declare purity] at the end of the rainy season, that Conqueror will be surrounded by 90,000 crores.

81 And when the Sage has gone in seclusion to the golden and silver Gandhamādana slope of the Himavanta mountain range,

82–83 he will enjoy the sport of meditation [accompanied by] 80,000 crores of those whose taints are destroyed, who are spotless, of peaceful minds, venerable ones. 83 100,000 crores of those who possess the six higher knowledges, who possess great psychic power, will constantly surround that Protector of the World, Metteyya.

84 Skilled in discriminating knowledge, knowing the words and the explanation [of the Doctrine], very learned, expert in the Doctrine, knowledgeable, adorning the Saṅgha, 85 well tamed, gentle, firm, they will surround that Conqueror. That Nāga [the Buddha] will be honoured by those monks who will be Nāgas like him. He who will have crossed over, together with those who have crossed over, who are at peace, who assemble in peace.

86 Together with an order of disciples surrounding that Great Sage, the Compassionate One, the Sympathetic

One, Metteyya, greatest of two-footed beings,

87 raising up many individuals and Devas, will bring them to Nibbāna. That Conqueror will wander around the towns and villages and capitals.

88 He will beat the drum of the Doctrine. He will sound the conch shell of the Doctrine. He will proclaim the spiritual sacrifice. He will raise the banner of the Doctrine.

89 He will roar the lion's roar, set in motion the excellent wheel [of the Doctrine], and cause men and women to drink the drink of truth with its excellent taste.

90 That Conqueror will wander for the sake of all beings, both rich and poor, causing many people who are capable of being awakened to be awakened.

91 The Seeing One will cause some to take refuge [in the Triple Gem], some to take the five moral precepts, and some to undertake the ten skilful [actions].

92 He will give some the state of being a novice and the four excellent Fruition States. He will give some discriminating knowledge into the incomparable Doctrine.

93 The Seeing One will give some the eight excellent attainments. He will give some the three knowledges and the six higher knowledges.

94 That Conqueror will admonish [a large] group of people [to undertake] that practice. Then the Teaching of the Conqueror Metteyya will be wide spread.

95 Seeing people capable of being awakened, that Sage will go 100,000 leagues in a moment and will cause them to be awakened.

96 At that time, Metteyya's mother will be named Brahmavatī, his father will be named Subrahma and will be the priest of King Saṅkha.

97 His foremost lay disciples will be Asoka and Brahmadeva. The [lay] attendant Sīha will attend on that Conqueror.

98 Padumā and Sumanā will be his foremost female disciples. Sumanā and Saṅgha will be his foremost personal attendants.

99 Yasavatī and Saṅgha will be his foremost female attendants. The Nāga tree will be the awakening [place] for that Blessed One.

100 Its trunk will be two thousand cubits. It will have 20,000 branches with curved tips [always] moving. It will shine like the outspread tail of a peacock.

101 The tips [of the branches] will be continually in flower and fragrant with a heavenly smell. The blossoms will be the size of wheels, with enough pollen to fill a nāli measure.

102 [The tree] will send its perfume in all directions for ten leagues, both with and against the wind. It will scatter its flowers all around the throne of awakening.

103 People from the country, coming together there, will smell the excellent odour and pour forth words [of admiration], rejoicing in its odour.

104 There will be a happy fruition of meritorious deeds for that venerable one, the Best of Buddhas, whose unimaginable radiance will spread out [like the smell of] the flowers.

105 That Conqueror will be eighty-eight cubits tall. That Teacher's chest will be twenty-five cubits in diameter.

106 The Seer will have broad eyes with thick eyelashes. His eyes will be pure, not blinking day or night. His physical eye will see small or large things

107 in all directions for ten leagues without obstruction. His radiance will stream forth as far as twenty-five leagues.

108 That Conqueror will shine like a streak of lightening or a candlestick. He will shine like the sun, resembling a garland of jewels.

109 His [thirty-two major] marks and [eighty] secondary marks will at all times be seen as rays. Many hundreds of thousands of different sorts of rays will fall down.

110 At every footstep [he takes] a beautiful flowering lotus will grow. [The lotuses will be] thirty cubits [across] with even petals and twenty-five minor petals.

111 The stamens will be twenty cubits long and the pericaps will be sixteen cubits long. Inside the red lotuses [the flowers] will be filled with very red pollen.

112 The Kāmavacarika Devas will make columns of honour and Nāga kings and Supaṇṇa [Devas] will decorate them.

113 There will be eight columns of gold, eight of silver, eight of jewels, and eight made of coral.

114 There will be many hundreds of flags hanging there disporting themselves—adorned garlands of flags ornamented with many precious things.

115 There will be awnings adorned with jewels and resembling the moon. There will be many jewelled head ornaments with nets of small bells surrounding them.

116 They will scatter fragrant, sweet-smelling, perfumed flowers, and different sorts of powder, both human and divine,

117 and a variety of cloths of diverse colours, beautiful, of the five colours. They will all sport around, having faith in the Buddha.

118 There will be gateways there with strings of jewels, a thousand [cubits] high, delightful, beautiful, unobstructed and well-formed.

119 They will be seen to be shining, with their radiance widespread all around. The Buddha, at the head of the Order of Monks, will go in their midst,

120 like Brahmā in his assembly or Indra in his palace. When the Buddha goes [anywhere], they will go; when he stays [in a place], they will stay;

121 when the Teacher sits or lies down together with his assembly, they will always practise the [same] four postures.

122 There will be these honours as well as others, both human and divine. There will constantly be many sorts of marvels

123 to honour Metteyya through the power of his endless merit. Having seen that marvel, many people of various births, [many] men with their families, will only abandon the Teacher as their refuge at the cost of their lives.

124 Whoever practises the holy life after hearing the word of the Sage, that person will go beyond journeying-on, which is subject to death and difficult to escape from.

125 Many householders will purify the eye of the Doctrine by means of the ten meritorious acts and the three types of right action.

126 Many will be destined for heaven through being accomplished in the traditional learning and texts, having purified [themselves] through respect for him, and through following the true Doctrine.

127 It would not be possible to describe in every detail their fame which will be so great. They will be continually very happy. When they reach the end of their time [in that life], 128 those men will have great fame as well as happiness. Life, beauty, and strength, and heavenly bliss [in a heavenly world] will be theirs.

129 They will experience the happiness of sensual pleasures for as long as they wish. Then afterwards, at the end of their lives, they will enter into [true] happiness.

130 [The Buddha's] lifetime there will be 80,000 years. Remaining there that long, he will bring many people to the other shore.

131 He will cause beings whose minds are ripe to be completely awakened and he will instruct others who have not perceived the [four] truths concerning which is the right path and which is the wrong path.

132 He will carefully establish the torch of the Doctrine, the boat of the Doctrine, the mirror of the Doctrine, the medicine [of the Doctrine] for beings [at that time and] in the future.

133 Then, in the midst of the venerable order of lay disciples who will have done what should be done, that Conqueror will blaze out like a mass of fire, and he will be extinguished.

134 When the Perfect Buddha has been completely extinguished, his Teaching will remain for 180,000 years. After that, there will be a terrible disappearance in the world.

135 Thus, the constituent elements are impermanent, not firm, temporary, transitory, liable to destruction and old age, and empty.

136 The constituent elements are like an empty fist, they are empty, they are the talk of fools. There is no power for anyone there, not even for one who has the psychic powers.

137 Thus, knowing this as it really is, one should be disillusioned with all compounded things. A Thoroughbred Among Men is hard to find. He is not born everywhere. Wherever that Hero is born, that happy family prospers.

138 Therefore, in order to see Buddha Metteyya here, act rightly, firmly, energetically, with agitated mind.

139 Whoever does good things here and dwells vigilant, whether a monk, nun, lay disciple, or laywoman disciple,

140 whoever esteems the great Buddha, pays great honour to the Great One, that person together with the Devas will see the auspicious assembly at that time.

141 Practise the holy life. Give suitable gifts. Keep the observance days. Practise loving kindness carefully.

142 Be one who delights in being vigilant, always performing meritorious actions. Having acted skilfully here, you will make an end of misery.

Appendix B:

Aspirations to Meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya

We have made some alterations in the following translations. [154]

1. Aspiration concluding many Pāli manuscripts in Sri Lanka (from Dbk, p. 36):

By the merit of this writing may I draw near to Metteyya (and) having been established in the Refuges, may I be well established in the Sāsana.

2. Aspiration concluding manuscripts in Sinhalese (from Dbk, p. 37):

By the power of these meritorious deeds, without falling into the four hells, may I seek the Bodhisatta Metteyya in the Tāvatiṃsa heaven and enjoying divine happiness, and going from there to Ketumatī City, eradicating the defilements, may I receive the peace of liberation from the Buddha Metteyya.

3. Aspiration concluding the Dvādasaparitta (from Dbk, p. 38):

In the future, Buddha Metteyya will be unexcelled in the world, he of great merits, of great power; may you have great peace.

4. Aspiration attributed to King Parākramabāhu I of Sri Lanka (from Dbk, p. 38):

Having departed from here and being reborn on the peak of Himalaya in the noble Jambudīpa (India) as a leading deity of an aeon's life-span, I shall indeed hear the Doctrine of Lord Metteyya.

5. Aspiration at the conclusion of the commentary on the Jātaka (from Dbk, p. 39; verses 4–11 of the concluding 37 verses):

May I, through this meritorious deed, be born in my next life in the city of Tusita, the beautiful dwelling-place of the gods. May I listen to the preaching of Lord Metteyya and enjoy great glory with him for a long time. When this Great Being is born in the charming city of Ketumatī as the Buddha, may I be reborn with the three noble root-conditions in a Brahman family. May I make offerings to that Great Sage of invaluable robes of the finest sort, alms, dwelling-places and medicines in abundance. May I undertake the life of a bhikkhu in the dispensation and illumine that noble (institution), being the possessor of potency, mindful and well-versed in the Tipiṭaka. May he predict (of me), “This one will be a Buddha in the future.” And may I offer gifts to the Buddhas who will come one after the other and (receive sure prediction) from them too. May I fare on in repeated births, give food and other things that are desired like a wish-conferring tree. May I fulfil all the perfections of morality, renunciation, wisdom, and so forth, and having attained the summit of the perfections, become an incomparable Buddha. May I preach the sweet Doctrine which brings bliss to all beings, liberating the whole world with its Devas from the bondage of repeated births. May I guide them to the most excellent, tranquil Nibbāna.

6. Aspiration at the conclusion of Sinhalese manuscripts of Ashin Buddhaghosa’s Visuddhimagga (The Path of Purification, pp. 837f.):

By the performance of such merit
As has been gained by me through this
And any other still in hand
So may I in my next becoming Behold the joys of Tāvatiṃsa,
Glad in the qualities of virtue
And unattached to sense desires
By having reached the first fruition,
And having in my last life seen Metteyya, Lord of Sages, highest
Of persons in the world, and helper

Delighting in all beings' welfare,
And heard the Holy One proclaim
The teaching of the Noble Law,
May I grace the Victor's Dispensation
By realising its Highest Fruit.

7. The aspiration of Thera Mahā-Maṅgala in his biography of Ashin Buddhaghosa (Buddhaghosuppatti) (from Dbk, p. 40):

O may it be my lot to meet with him, the Lord Metteyya! He, the Fully Awakened One, shall lead vast multitudes across saṃsāra's stream.

When I have found Metteyya, may I be versed in the three scriptures, and then in wisdom I shall see face-to-face the lord of mercy.

8. Aspiration at the end of sharing merits in the Dāna ceremony in Sri Lanka (from Dbk, p. 41):

By the aid of this meritorious deed of Dāna, may you be reborn in the heavenly and human worlds, enjoying the greatest of worldly happiness, and may you be born again in the presence of Buddha Metteyya, and benefiting from his teaching of the Four Noble Truths, may you attain to the supreme, immortal, great Nibbāna!

9. Aspiration used in connection with the recitation Parittas (verses of protection) in Sri Lanka (from Dbk, p. 42):

May the multitude of gods dwelling over the seven oceans, on Mount Meru, in the Titans' world, in the world of Nāgas, in the six celestial worlds, in the four shrines of the (four Guardian) Devas, on Mount Samantakūtā, on the Himalayas, over the seven lakes, over Lake Anotatta, in the sky, on the earth, in all the Brahmā worlds, in this Cakkavāḷa (world-system), in the island of Ceylon, partake of these merits with loving thoughts and perceive Nibbāna by seeing the sage-king Metteyya.

10. Closing verses at the end of Sinhalese manuscripts of Ashin Buddhaghosa's Atthasālinī (from The Expositor, p. 542):

By grace of this, the book I wrote,
Into Metteyya's presence am I come.
Within the Refuges established
Upon the Sāsana I take my stand.
May mother, father, teachers, they who wish me well
And they who do not, give me happy thanks
And long safeguard the merit I have won.

Notes

1. One text, the Mahāsampiṇḍanidāna, was not available to us. For the story in it concerning Ven. Mahā-Kassapa, see Dbk, pp. 43–45. According to this text, the body of an Arahant name Kassapa who lived after the time of the Buddha Kassapa is inside Kukkuṭasampāta Mountain and will come out at the time of the next Buddha to be cremated then.

Some works which include discussions of the material found in Pāli texts have not added any new information, and so are not quoted. See, for example, Emile Abegg, Der Messiasglaube in Indien und Iran (Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 1928); Emil Abegg, 'Der Buddha Maitreya,' Mitteilungen der Schweizerischen Gesellschaft der Freunde Ostasiatischer Kultur, VII (1945), pp. 7–37. For a discussion of the importance of Metteyya in Sri Lanka, see Culte, pp. 86–96.

2. The name is also shortened in Burma to Arimetteyya.
3. See pp. 32–43.
4. These verses are given in Pāli and English in Dbk, pp. 381. They are not included in the English translation of the Jātaka.

5. The Path of Purification, pp. 837f. and Dbk, p. 40.
6. Expos., p. 542.
7. See Dbk, pp. 42f.
8. Pagan, Art and Architecture of Old Burma (Whiting Bay: Kiscadale Publications, 1989), p. 122. See also p. 32.
9. See Dipak K. Barua, Buddha Gaya Temple: Its History (Buddha Gaya Temple Management Committee, 1981), pp. 195–200.
10. According to the Gandhavaṃsa (61, 1). See K.R. Norman, Pali Literature (Wiesbaden: Otto Harrassowitz, 1983), pp. 147, 161.
11. These verses begin the printed Burmese texts consulted: Dipeyin Sayādaw, Anāgatavaṃsa (Rangoon: Icchāsaya Piṭaka Printing Press); Maung Ba Pe, Anāgatavaṃ kyam: (Rangoon: Tuiṃ:ok Bhā:mā:, 1907); and the anonymous Anāgatavaṃ kyam: (Rangoon: Kawimyakmhan, 1924). In this translation, we include in brackets the information the authors supply in their word-by-word translation of the Pāli into Burmese. The wording is very close to that found in a Burmese manuscript quoted by Minayeff (JPTS, 1883, p. 37), in Dbu, (p. 334), and in a Burmese nissaya (word-by-word translation), dated 1842, of the Anāgatavaṃsa in the Museum fur Indische Kunst, Berlin (Hs-Birm 3) (see No. 88 [p. 117] in Heinz Bechert, Daw Khin Khin Su, Daw Tin Tin Myint, Burmese Manuscripts, part 1, Verzeichnis der Orientalischen Handschriften in

Deutschland, Band XXIII, 1 (Wiesbaden: Franz Steiner, 1979). Dbu has the following variants for names: Dīghajaṅghi for Dīghasoni and Soṇa for Caṇḍani; the lines quoted by Minayeff (and cited in Dbk, p. 17) give Saṃkacca for Caṇḍani; Hs-Birm 3 has Saṃcicca for Caṇḍani, all three texts have Pālileyyo for Palaleyo.

12. Only a Teaching Buddha has the ability to see if the aspiration will be fulfilled. See Treatise, p. 263 under “(4) The Sight of the Master.”
13. See Treatise, p. 303. These are also mentioned in the introduction to Th-a.
14. His name is also given as Ariya Metteyya. In Myanmar, this is usually contracted to Ari-Metteyya (see the Myanmar–English Dictionary, Department of the Myanmar Language Commission, 3rd ed., 1993, p. 586, Ari-Metteyya = Ariya + Metteyya).
15. See Ven. H. Saddhitissa’s introduction to Dbk, p. 33.
16. See Sayagyi U Ba Khin, Dhamma Texts, pp. 53f.; CSM, p. 88; and The Path of Purification (Vism), XIII 16. In CSM, the ordinary disciple is not mentioned and the time given for the Pacceka Buddha is two incalculables and one hundred thousand aeons. The figures we have given are based on how far back the various Bodhisattas can recollect given in Vism.
17. See Treatise, pp. 312–314; CSM, 23, 89, 162. They are also mentioned at Dh-a I 84 and Ja I 25. The Jātaka stories illustrating the highest perfections in the case of Buddha Gotama are given in CSM (pp. 89–92).

18. See CSM, pp. 89, 162, and Treatise, p. 313.
19. See Treatise, pp. 312f.
20. See Treatise, pp. 313f.
21. See Treatise, pp. 325f.
22. This is mentioned in Dvp, p. 133.
23. CSM, p. 130f. (in the discussion of “cause”).
24. In an unpublished passage. This is mentioned by Sayādaw U Vicittasārābhivaṃsa in his Mahābuddhavaṇi (Yangon: Sāsana Council, 1977), pp. 6–10 (he quotes as his source: Ashin Thilawuntha [Silavaṃsa], Pāramī-kaṇ-pyo).
25. See Treatise, pp. 267–270.
26. See CSM, pp. 132–134.
27. Jinakālamālī (Epochs of the Conqueror).
28. Epochs, pp. 5f.
29. Epochs, pp. 8f.
30. Dbk (see also pp. 391–413 of the next text), and Dbu.
31. There does not seem to be any information as to when this Buddha lived. He would have lived before the twenty-four Buddhas under whom the Bodhisatta who became Buddha Gotama made his resolutions.
32. See Illus., p. 131.

33. Reading yātha with the Martini ed. (p. 395 and variant reading p. 306) for yāva in the Pali Text Society ed. (p. 127).
34. See CSM, p. 215.
35. Dbk, p. 54.
36. We base the following account on the information in Dipeyin Sayādaw's Anāgatavaṃsa. See also: Dbk, p. 54; Sylvain Levi, "Maitreya le consolateur," Etudes d'orientalisme publiées par le Musée Guimet à la mémoire de Raymonde Linossier (1932), Vol. II, p. 366 (his information is based on a Pāli text from Thailand, Paṭhamasambodhi); and George Cœdès, "Une vie indochinoise du Bouddha: la Paṭhamasambodhi," Mélanges d'indianiste à la mémoire de Louis Renou (1968), pp. 217–227. According to Dvp, Chapter 31 (Pāli, pp. 125–127, French, pp. 132–134), Ajita was from a prosperous family in Saṅkassa. This text says that Bodhisatta Metteyya had already fulfilled the perfections for sixteen incalculables and a hundred thousand aeons when he was born as a human during the time of Buddha Gotama. His family lived at the gate of the city Saṅkassa (Saṅkhassa in the French ed.). It was here that the Buddha descended from the Tāvatiṃsa Deva world after teaching the Abhidhamma. On this occasion he asked Ven. Sāriputta a question which none of the other disciples were able to answer in order to show that the chief disciple understood the Doctrine better than any of the other disciples (see Buddhist Legends, III, 54–56).

When the Great Bodhisatta heard Ven. Sāriputta's answer, he was very pleased. Seeing the pleasing appearance of the Buddha and hearing him teach the Doctrine, Ajita was drawn to become a bhikkhu. (The French translation of this passage is slightly inaccurate.)

37. Suttanta No. 142 (MLS, III 300–305).
38. The account in the Paṭhamasambodhi differs somewhat (see Sylvain Levi, “Maitreya,” p. 366). In this account, Ajita is still a novice, the newest member of the Saṅgha. He is given both of the robes and uses the second one by tearing it up to make garlands to hang from the border of the canopy. After having done all this, Ajita makes a vow to become a Teaching Buddha and Buddha Gotama then gives his sure prediction. The details concerning the robe and the sure prediction are also found in Dvp (Pāli, p. 126).
39. D, No. 26 (DB, III, 72–74; TS, pp. 364–368).
40. Sayagyi U Ba Khin interpreted this passage to mean that the generosity would consist mainly of the gift of the Dhamma (see above, p. vii).
41. See Vol. I, 22–25 (Ch. XXXVII, verses 215–246). This passage is quoted by Ven. Naṇamoli in the introduction of his translation, The Path of Purification (pp. xxi–xxii).
42. Sih, Chapter III (Pāli, pp. 8–12; French, second pagination, pp. 10–14).
43. Dbu, p. 344.

44. See The Path of Purification, Chapter I,135.
45. See DB II, 39–41 (D, No. 14). Those who attain the third stage of Awakening (Non-returners) can live in the Pure Abodes (Suddhāvāsa) of the Brahmā worlds long enough to encounter more than one Buddha. Buddha Gotama recounts meeting Brahmās in the Pure Abodes who confirm for him events that he recalls from the time of former Buddhas (see D, n. 14 [DB, II 4–41, especially pp. 39–41]).
46. D III 58–79, translated in DB III 59–76 and TS 347–370. Miss Horner seems to overlook this when she says that there is no mention in the Canon or Commentaries that Buddha Gotama made a declaration of future Buddhahood for Metteyya (CB xvi).
47. See also GS I 142, where the Buddha says that these three things were already prevalent in his day.
48. See CSM 391.
49. As 27, see Expos. 35.
50. Sp 1291.
51. Mp IV 136f.
52. Ven. Ledi Sayādaw (MB 169) calls these five thousand years the age of Ariyas (Noble Ones).
53. Th-a III 89.
54. See the commentary on A (Mp I 87), Moh 201–203, and the extract from the Anāg commentary (JPTS, 1886, pp.

33–36; translated in BT 481–486).

55. The number of years is mentioned only in the Anāg commentary.
56. Some texts speak of three disappearances. See CPD under antaradhāna for references.
57. Dbk 55/120 says 82,000 years.
58. Sv III 885f.
59. JPTS, 1886, p. 41, n. 5.
60. Dvp 125/132 says that after the human life span decreases to ten years, there will be seven intervening aeons (sattantara-kappa), then the life span will increase to an incalculable, and when it has decreased again to 80,000 years, the next Buddha will arise.
61. CSM 277.
62. Spk III 390; cf. KS IV 60, n. 2.
63. D III 75–77 (DB III 72–74; TS 365–368).
64. This “Chronicle of the Future” is entirely devoted to the next Buddha.
65. Dbk 55f., 61/120f., 127f.; Dbu 298–302, 306/338–341, 344.
66. Dvp 125–127/132–134.
67. D II 1–54 (DB II 4–41) (Mahāpadāna Suttanta).
68. M sutta n. 123 (MLS III 163–169).

69. CSM 428–430.
70. CSM 389 mentions three such tumults and says the four guardian Devas will make the announcement of a Buddha. Illus. 130f. mentions five tumults and says the Brahmās of the Suddhāvāsa Brahmā world announce a Buddha.
71. According to Dbu he is conceived on the full-moon day of Āsāḷha (June-July).
72. According to Dvp 126/133.
73. See Th-a I 502. From the Tusita world, she goes to the Tāvatiṃsa world to hear the Abhidhamma.
74. The translation of the first two diseases is based on the commentary to D III 75 (Sv 855). Pj II 323 says these mean (1) the craving which is a wish to be a Deva (Devapatthanatanhā), (2) hunger (khudā), and (3) the decay of old age (paripāka-jarā).
75. Dbu 299/339.
76. Anāg vv 33–42.
77. Anāg vv 8, 15–20.
78. Dbu 299/338 says one league wide.
79. According to Dbu 106/344 a wishing tree will spring up through the merit of the seven-days walk made by the Bodhisatta in the past life when he went to see Buddha Sirimutta.

- 80. Not to be confused with the Bodhisatta Saṅkha.
According to Dbu, the future Saṅkha is a Deva named Mahā-Naḷakāra (cf. D-t 43). Naḷakāra was the name of Mahā-Panāda in the Tāvatiṃsa Deva world (Ja IV 318–323).
- 81. The account in Ja No. 489 says the father became Mahā-Panāda. Sv III 856 says it was the son and that the father is still in the Deva worlds. D 43 gives his name as Naḷakāra (“the basket maker”) which would mean both father and son had this name in the Deva worlds. Dvp (119–127/126–134) gives their names as Nāva-khuddhaka-Naḷakāra (or Cula-Naḷakāra), meaning “the younger Naḷakāra,” and Jeṭṭhaka-Naḷakāra (or Jeṭṭha-Naḷakāra), meaning “the older Naḷakāra,” so that here too it is the father who will be the future Saṅkha.
- 82. Sv III 856f. says that the palace has not disappeared because of the meritorious act done by both the father and son in the past. Thus, it awaits the future king, Saṅkha, to be enjoyed by him.
- 83. Anāg vv 12–14. Cf. Th vv 163–164.
- 84. In Dvp (125/132) his career as a Wheel-turning Monarch is described as following the pattern for other Monarchs (see DPPN II 1343ff.).
- 85. Anāg vv 27–32.
- 86. Dbu 300/338. Th v 164: “6000 musicians danced there.”
- 87. D III 75 (DB III 73). This is a common feature to all

Wheel-turning Monarchs, see Sn p. 106 (GD 96).

88. He will have the same name as the Bodhisatta in that life: Ajita (according to Dbu 300/338).
89. Also mentioned in Vism chap. XIII, 127 and As 415 (Expos. 525). Dvp (126/133) gives the mother's name as Pajāpatī.
90. For the list of the 32 marks, see D I 17–19 (DB I 1416). The 80 minor marks are given in the introduction to Dbk.
91. This is the only case in which a Bodhisatta is said to have four rather than three palaces. As each of the three palaces were used for one of the three seasons, we can surmise that there will be four seasons during the time of the next Buddha. Dbu (300/339), and Dvp (126/133) mention only three palaces.
92. Dbu (300/339) says 700,000.
93. According to Dvp (126/132) she will be the chief consort out of 1,000 wives.
94. Dbu 300/339f.
95. Alternate reading: Vijjuttara.
96. Usually named Beluva-pañḍu-vīnā. PED defines vina as a lute, but translates as “flute” (sic) under the entries pañḍu and beluva.
97. Dvp 126f./134, Dbu 300f./340; Anāg vv 100–103.
98. Dbu says that from the root to the extremity of the branches will be 200 feet plus 40 cubits. Anāg says the trunk will measure 2,000 cubits.

99. Anāg v 100 says the pollen (of each bloom) will be enough to fill a nāli measure.
100. Vv 55–63.
101. Alternate reading: Saṅgha and Saṅghā.
102. Dvp (126f./134) says it will be at the park in Isipatana near the city of Ketumatī. In this version, King Saḍkha is present for the First Sermon.
103. CSM 429, but cf. CB xxii.
104. Dvp (127/134) says an incalculable. Dbu (301/340) says 100 crores of humans and an unlimited number of Devas.
105. The twenty-five Buddhas described in the Buddhavaṃsa (including Buddha Gotama) are said to have three “penetrations.”
106. In CSM (279), only Buddha Padumuttara is described as having “Ehi bhikkhus” in a “penetration.” Many past Buddhas had such bhikkhus in assemblies.
107. Buddhas generally have three assemblies, but Buddha Gotama and the three Buddhas before him had only one each (D I 2–7 [DB I 6f.]).
108. Cf. CSM 180.
109. Anāg v 83.

110. D III 76 (DB III 74).
111. The last detail is added by the commentary (Sv 856).
112. This paragraph is based on Anág vv 87–95.
113. Sīh III v 20.
114. Names of the chief disciples are found in Anāg vv 97–99. The commentary in BN 630/862 gives the information concerning Saṅkha taking the bhikkhu name of Asoka.
115. Alternate reading in BN 630/862: Suddhana.
116. Alternate reading: Saṅkha.
117. Alternate reading: Saṅkhā. These two pairs are identified as lay disciples in BN 630/862.
118. Details in this paragraph are from Anág vv 112–123.
119. CSM 428ff.
120. Dbk 55/61, Dbu 301/340, Anág vv 105–109.
121. Miss Horner says that a cubit (hattha) is the distance between the elbow and the tip of the extended middle finger (CB xxii).
122. Dbk says 25 cubits broad and 25 cubits lengthwise. Dbu says 25 cubits thick.
123. Dbu says 40 cubits.
124. Dbu says from one shoulder to the other will be 25 cubits.
125. Dbu says 15 cubits, but a variant reading gives 5.

- 126. V 106.
- 127. Usually given as a sign of a Deva or Yakkha.
- 128. Dbu says 4.
- 129. Dbu says 5.
- 130. Dbk has “the circle of the face and ears” (trans.: “each auricle”). Dbk: kaṇṇa-mukha-maṇḍalaṃ; Dbu: mukha-maṇḍalaṃ.
- 131. Dbu 301: āvatta-uṇhīsaṃ. This mark is not entirely clear as it seems an exceptionally high figure.
- 132. Dbk 55/120, Dbu 301/340.
- 133. Anāg v 109.
- 134. Anāg v 107, Dbk 61/128.
- 135. Dbu 306/344.
- 136. According to Dbu (106/344) he will shine both day and night through the merit he acquired from the blood which flowed from his legs and feet when he went to see Buddha Sirimata in a past life.
- 137. Dbk 120f./55, Dbu 301f./340.
- 138. Details from Anāg Vv 110f., Dbk 55/121, and Dbu 302/341.
- 139. Dbk 61/128.
- 140. Left out of the translation of Dbk (p. 55).
- 141. Dbk translates “pollen of ten cubits” for dasa-dasa-

sampannā neṇū which should perhaps mean “filled with tens (of loads) of pollen” (Dbu has dasā-dasa-ammaṇa-reṇukā, ammaṇa meaning “a load”). The size of an ammaṇa is not known precisely, but would be a large quantity.

142. CSM 430.

143. Anāg v 134

144. 306/344.

145. DB III 211.

146. Vv 138–142.

147. MB 176–172. Cf. Vism, chap. VII, 30.

148. See DB II 39–41. Buddha Gotama recounts how the Brahmās in the Suddhāvāsa worlds told him about the six Buddhas before him.

149. Sukkha-vipassaka, literally, “one who develops ‘dry’ insight.”

150. Vism, chap. VII, 30f. For a discussion of these, see MLS II 20–25.

151. Ven. Ledi Sayādaw says generosity is included here.

152. See GS III 71–73. We discuss them in the order found there. The jhānas are added to the seven there.

153. I wish to thank Mr. K.R. Norman for his help in translating the Anāgatavaṃsa. I am responsible, of course, for the final version and any mistakes in it. I hope to prepare an edition with full critical apparatus, but this will only be possible after the unpublished commentary has been examined in detail. Mr Norman has revised this translation and published it with his notes in the Journal of the Pali Text Society, Vol. XXVIII, pp. 19–37 (reprinted in his Collected Papers, Vol. VIII, pp. 242–60).—William Pruitt

- 154. See Culte, pp. 559–560, for the formula recited by lay people in Sri Lanka and the exhortation of the bhikkhus to the lay people to aspire to rebirth in the Deva worlds in their next life in order to eventually encounter Metteyya, hear him preach, and attain liberation.

THE BUDDHIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY

The BPS is an approved charity dedicated to making known the Teaching of the Buddha, which has a vital message for all people.

Founded in 1958, the BPS has published a wide variety of books and booklets covering a great range of topics. Its publications include accurate annotated translations of the Buddha's discourses, standard reference works, as well as original contemporary expositions of Buddhist thought and practice. These works present Buddhism as it truly is—a dynamic force which has influenced receptive minds for the past 2500 years and is still as relevant today as it was when it first arose.

For more information about the BPS and our publications, please visit our website, or write an e-mail or a letter to the:

Administrative Secretary

Buddhist Publication Society

P.O. Box 61 • 54 Sangharaja Mawatha

Kandy • Sri Lanka

E-mail: bps@bps.lk • web site: <http://www.bps.lk>

Tel: 0094 81 223 7283 • Fax: 0094 81 222 3679

Table of Contents

The Coming Buddha Ariya Metteyya	2
Contents	4
List of abbreviations	5
Introduction	9
Introduction to the Revised Edition	13
The Bodhisatta Metteyya	15
Buddha Ariya Metteyya	35
The Duration of the Sāsana of Buddha Gotama	38
The Coming of Buddha Ariya Metteyya	41
The Birth of the Next Buddha	42
The Wheel-turning Monarch Saṅkha	45
The Career of Bodhisatta Metteyya	46
How to Meet Buddha Metteyya	56
Appendix A:	62
The Chronicle of the Future Buddha Anāgatavaṃsa Pāḷi [153]	62
Translation	74
Appendix B:	93
Aspirations to Meet Buddha Ariya Metteyya	93
Notes	98